*I know you're out there, world.
I know.
I feel you there
just on the threshold of my mind—
vague echoes,
dream-whispers catching
my breath in sleep,
clandestine voices
quietly saying:
Prepare!*

*So we come here to this place
of exaggerated eagerness
to prepare.
Encumbered by goals,
frothing with ambition,
filthy with spirit,
we come willing to be led,
altered,
groping for a chance to be tried.*

*Gullible and naive,
many of us,
uncertain, betrayed
by our own wonder.
We leave worry
in morning mirrors,
swagger forth, ego-alert,
to live unscathed,
naked and honest,
but also vulnerable.*

*Study (prepare),
cram, exam—
four years,
a repetitious rhythm:
pencils and typewriters,
busy erasers,
spoons in stained coffeecups,
shuffling papers—
droning,
night-long symphonies
of learning, learning
And still those questions
at the back door
of your mind:
Why? What am I after?
Who am I, anyway?
But you shut that door—
quickly—
before answers
can take form.
No time
for such questions now.
Go back.
You must go back to your books.*

*Raw and bitter,
that's you, world.
And bittersweet.
I didn't come here
to be disillusioned.
Sometimes it's hard
to play the game.
Sometimes I don't think
it's worth it.
Yet this moment of pain
is strangely pleasant;
now I can see myself—
and you—
with new clarity.
Is this also a part of my preparation?*

*You're too imminent, world!
Too demanding.
Wait. A little time
Don't strain and threaten me with impending responsibility.
With all this striving
to be adult,
a little time
Please give me a little time to still be young.*

*Here we go becoming again:
changing, shifting,
assimilating,
fitting new patterns—
a human kaleidoscope
of fragmented visions,
a polyphony
of many voices
making odd harmonies.
Trying to fit
into you, world.
Trying to become a part of each other.*

HOMECOMING...

ANNUAL MANIA, 1967

"Never again," said the tissue stuffer whose fingers were red and bleeding from wire scrapes and cold. (He had said the same thing last year.)

"Why? Why am I out here?" lamented the sign painter whose brush was too large to trace the narrow lines and whose paint-smeared visage looked thoroughly disgruntled.

"We're crazy," shouted down the amateur carpenter who couldn't drive nails straight from his precarious perch high above.

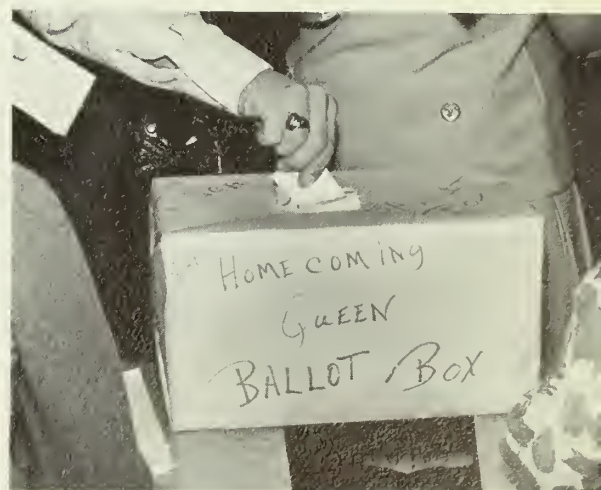

"Great! I love it!" leered the electrician who was getting a charge out of scaring girls by telling them not to step on all the live wires he had lying around.

Three non-talented onlookers busied themselves getting in the way and telling dirty jokes to anyone who would listen—especially sorority women.

But by 3 a.m., nobody said much of anything. The hollow-chested weariness from too much coffee and too little sleep had immobilized and silenced the gay horde that had descended, sweat-shirted and eager, on the display sites only a few hours before. All but a gutsy and persistent few sat quietly around the wood fire that was turning the bottom of the oil-drum furnace into a red glow.

A pledge, suddenly aroused from his nap by the fire by a member's cry for assistance, rose, grunted, glanced longingly at the curling flame, and tiredly expressed the sentiments of one completely oblivious to all the color and tradition of the madness in which he was taking part. "Homecoming," he said slowly. "big . . . deal."

Queen Ann and Her Court

an uncertain dawn came slate-colored to the cold black slab of
 sky,
 its light
 unnoticed
 for a long time,
 ghosted by smoke haze
 shifting in low
 patterns
 over the fire barrels.
 huddled sleepers
 in absurd positions
 stirred in the new light—
 awakening
 to stale mouths,
 to dew-matted hair—
 and sat up,
 laboriously,
 to watch the sun
 find flaws
 in their nocturnal
 handiwork.
 emerging in sunlight
 the color of
 breakfast butter:
 tall rows
 of gay, freakish
 monsters
 standing on fragile pride and two-by-four limbs, covered with paper mache skin
 and stuffed tissue
 facades
 to hide vital organs;
 groaning
 with the whir of motors,
 creaking
 with birth rigors
 to live only a day ...
 but gloriously!

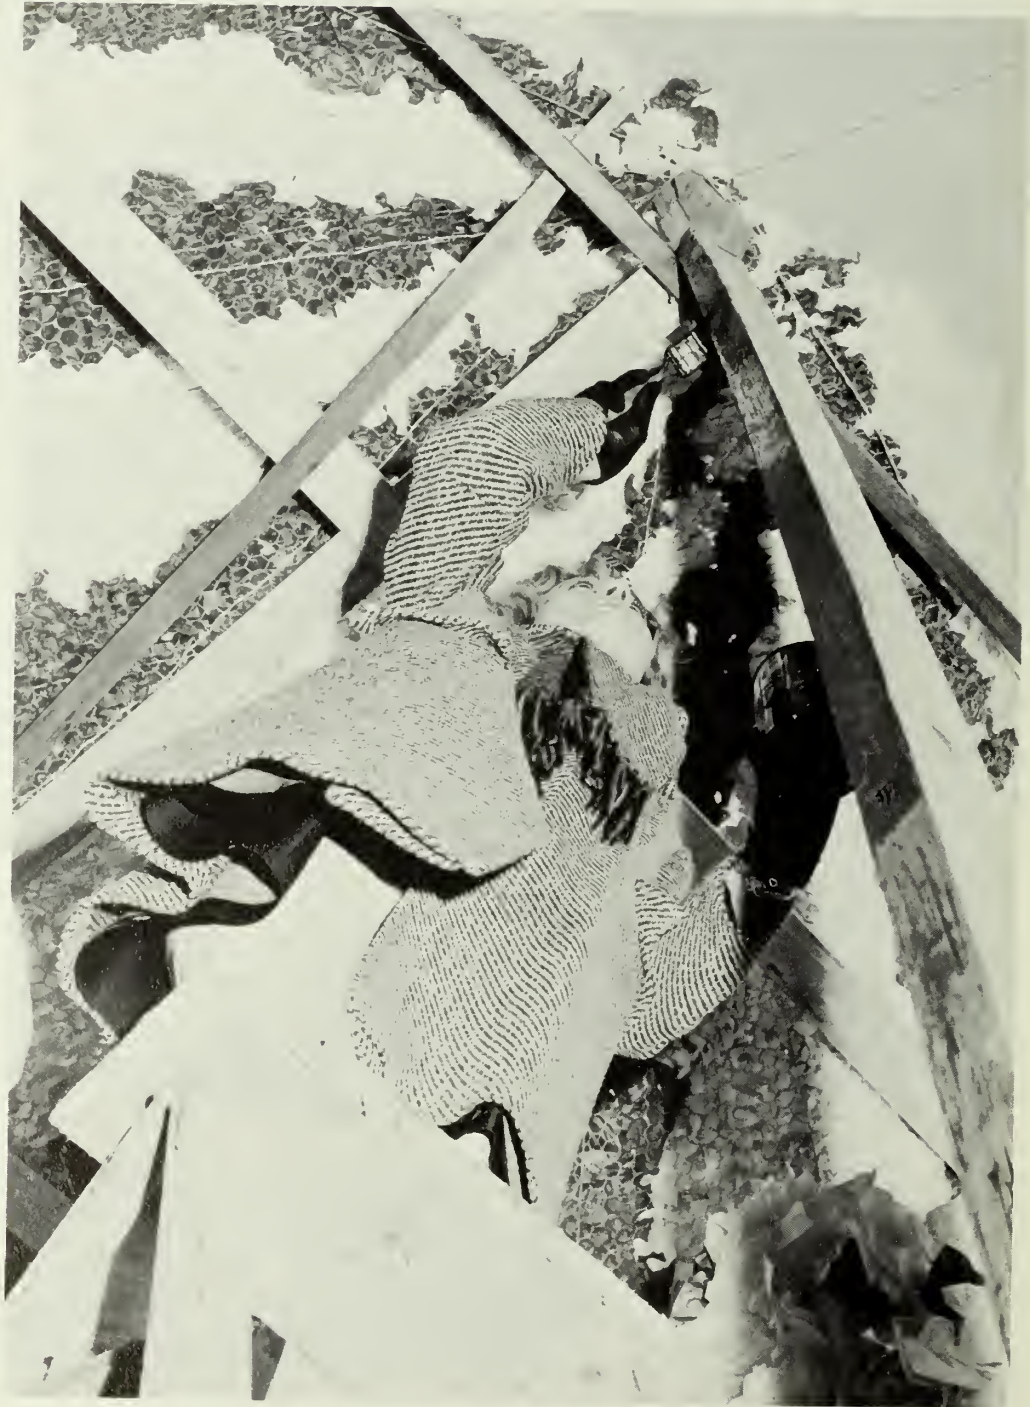

Competition was, as usual, cutthroat. A fight almost ensued when members of one group charged onto the display site of another with threats of disqualification. The trend toward larger displays and louder sound effects continued this year. The booming "voice" of Lambda Chi's "Indiac" robot delighted its creators, gave headaches to everyone else, and even forced several teachers in Wilson Hall to dismiss classes because they couldn't shout above the din.

BSU's "Ode to Willie Cat" took first place in the stationary without lights competition.

Gibson Elected SGA

When the campaigning (below) was over, outgoing president Ray Hall (above) helped count votes after students used ill-fated voting machines (right) which later fell out of a truck and into oblivion.

President in Lackluster Campaign

Take one election. Subtract the enthusiasm. Reduce the number of signs and posters—the glossy smiles and red paint promises. Leave the butcher paper banners unhung. Remove the noise and circus color. Take away the partisan intrigue and midnight accusations. Add apathy. What do you have? University!

It was the year the coalitions disbanded—or did they? It was the year the campus politicians axed the old election system—and forgot to offer a new one to replace it. It was the year the Greeks got out of the limelight—and went underground where the campaigning was cheaper. It was the year the independents got a bigger voice in the SGA—and spoke in a hoarse whisper election day.

And after the rickety platforms were assembled, the apologetic speeches and uncertain assertions made, even a chance to turn the knobs on new, university-ized voting machines failed to draw voters: only 20 per cent of the last year's turnout showed up to play.

True, it was a more sane election: there were fewer sleepless nights, fewer paint-splattered pledges nodding in class. But the old-timers, the veterans of past political tortures—shook their heads with nostalgic sadness amid the new sophistication and said quietly to each other: "Not like it was. Back when I was a freshman, we worked like hell..."

Leadership Retreat: Wet Weather, Heated Debate

Dean Moore cracks a funny. . .

In the past, the annual leadership retreat has sometimes tended to be a prolonged picnic—a time for administrative officials and the student brownnoses to pat each other on the back and rationalize about the state of the campus.

But the last outing at Walcott was different. The pollyanna atmosphere was gone—replaced by a healthy aura of discontent. And neither the thunderstorms which muddled the volleyball courts nor the mass dunkings at the lake dampened the spirits of the upstarts who were determined to question status quo.

Dean Moore managed to maintain a strained smile throughout the onslaught. And Miss Stroud gave her usual lectures about campus life after dark and how to brush the teeth properly. But after the irrelevancies had been endured and the business begun, the students—reinforced by a few outspoken faculty members—voiced their disapproval of some of the procedures and policies of their new university. The punitive classcut system and outmoded rules for women's dress were among the topics scrutinized. The result was not a childish bickering session but rather a worthwhile analysis of some of the problems which are bound to confront a growing school.

Two things are certain: a lot of people got wet, and a few people got burned.

Not everyone was fiery-tongued and incensed.

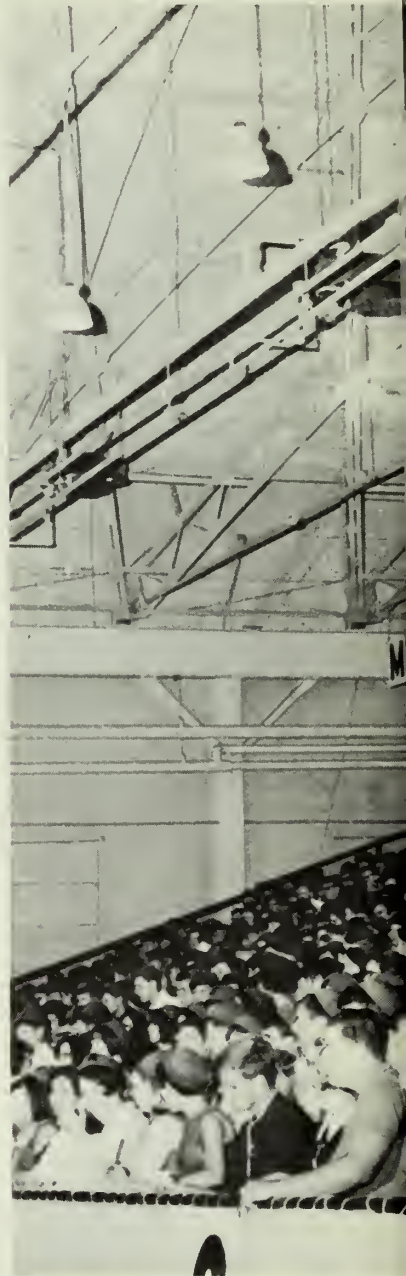

Dry socks were a rarity at the retreat, but stringy-haired girls and soggy sweatshirts were common. Students were usually found huddled under umbrellas (below) during break periods. But the traditional dunkings were carried out anyway, even though everyone was already wet. The girls, after a pilgrimage to the drink, Miss Stroud in tow, were ambushed from behind (lower left) by male conspirators. And Dean Moore (above) was carried struggling by six stalwart lads to that natural habitat which his nickname implies.

Freshmen

Enter New World Wide-eyed...

From the loving care of mamma and daddy to the humiliation of red beanies, a record number of freshmen took the big step and began their college education by reading an ode, singing "Dixie," and listening to Dean Moore warn of the perils of college life (and he should know). Dances—which failed desperately—were held to help the newcomers get acquainted. While upperclassmen threatened with songs to Clyde, the red beanies dotted the campus for a few weeks. But soon the frightened looks left, and the beanies disappeared down laundry chutes, into drawers, and under mattresses. Heartened by their newfound autonomy, the freshmen breezed through registration, made one more quick trip home, and settled down to the routine of college existence.

Four Fraught Years Later—a Degree

Starched, stacked diplomas in black leather covers. A robe's walking whisper in solemn procession. Dignified countenances. Clandestine memories. At last, graduation—ceremonial gladness.

Graduation is not an end in itself; it is merely a stately ritual, a symbol, a culmination. For every student graduates countless times before he reaches this somber moment: every experience, every feeling, every thought is a separate commencement into understanding.

The diploma — somehow small and unimpressive when compared with the rigors required to gain it. As a record of academic achievement, it is sufficient. But think of all it does not record

Christmas is a time of justified abandon, of hours wasted, money spent—a time when the grotesque and the gaudy are accepted as signs of the season along with the quiet and sublime. A paradoxical time of childish exuberance and intuitive reverence. A time when excesses and overtiness can be chalked up to cheer.

A modern-day nativity: a huge red candle dripping electric wax into the darkness. . . tinsel ice color-changing through a foggy window. . . Santa Claus with a cardboard smile and unruly reindeer . . . Rudolph with a 200-watt nose. . . candy-striped light posts . . . a beautiful evergreen entombed in fraudulent snow . . . All perhaps a little too bright and shining to celebrate the birthday of a humble Man.

MISS ASU

It was hot.

The girls backstage fanned themselves with their numbered placards to keep makeup from melting and hairdos from falling. Emcee Trent Wood made periodic trips backstage to chuck his coat and wipe his brow. Audience members wandered in and out Wilson Auditorium for fresh air and water.

Luckily, the pageant lasted only three hours, Sherry Grooms and all.

The audience became increasingly restless as the on-stage events and muggy atmosphere added to the tension. But the muttering and seat-shifting ceased quickly when it came time for the judges' final decision.

Tense silence became screeching chaos when the announcement came that Jo Ella Todd, a crowd favorite throughout the pageant, was the new Miss Arkansas State University.

Amanda Miller (left), who later was named Miss Congeniality, takes a backstage bite of Phoebe Johnson's lollipop.

Jo Ella Todd's talent offering (upper middle)—a medley of songs from "Camelot"—won one of the three divisional trophies.

Evening gown winner Sara Pugh.

Emcee Trent Wood and Ann Smithwick, Miss Campus beautiful, watch Carol Rand make her last official appearance as Miss ASU.

"Quarter turn, please," said the emcee, and 13 evening gowns rustled as the girls complied, giving the judges a last look before the finalists were selected. Seven proved a lucky number.

Mary Rose howls at the moon in her "Snoopy" talent sequence.

Then came the climax. Jo Ella gasped when the announcement was made (left), then displayed a smile of gratitude (second toward left) moments later while posing with the alternate winners.

Indian Family Personifies ASU Spirit

Modern-day Indian finds white man's invention (grease paint) makes much better war paint than mud and berry juice.

It's difficult to look stern and fierce when your team's getting trounced.

Robert St. John used his personal experiences as a correspondent during the Israeli-Egyptian crisis as a basis for his lecture.

"Romeo and Juliet" proved one of the more popular presentations in the series.

Crowds Sporadic at Lecture-Concert Series

Despite a wide variety of programming, students took little interest in the lecture half of the 1968 Lecture-Concert Series. All six guest speakers addressed sparse crowds in the Reng Center Ballroom. Robert St. John, a foreign correspondent who told of personal experiences while covering the Egyptian-Israeli war, did manage to stir some enthusiasm when he remained after his formal lecture to talk to a small group of interested students. Other lecturers were Jenkin Lloyd Jones, editor of the Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune, Agnes DeMille, an American choreographer; parapsychologist Dr. J. B. Rhine; William Rusher, publisher of the National Review; and Mortimer J. Adler, editor of the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Attendance at concerts by the Memphis Symphony and the Roger Wagner Chorale, and the National Shakespearean Company's production of "Romeo and Juliet," was better, however, since bus loads of students from nearby high schools boosted the crowds. The chorale's performance was well received, with audience enthusiasm resulting in an extended program. Extra chairs were needed to seat the overflow crowd at the Shakespearean presentation.

Crowds were, ironically, larger at the paid concerts than at the free lectures.

Jenkin Lloyd Jones stayed over after his lecture to address a meeting of the Presidents' Round-table the next morning.

Memphis Symphony's concert was well attended by music majors and minors.

Robert St. John stayed after Reng Center closing time to discuss his lecture with interested students.

Arkansas Attorney General Joe Purcell addressed the President's Award Banquet crowd.

William Rusher's talk on academic freedom drew spirited queries from faculty members.

Lecturers Discuss Timely Topics

Roger Wagner Chorale's presentation drew good audience response.

Agnes DeMille delivered a talk concerning future trends in the arts.

Miss Warwick made up for bad jokes with her winning sound.

After the concert, reporter Pat Darby interviewed the star attraction.

The Lettermen, a popular trio, played A-State again this year after SGA's poll proved abortive.

Dionne Warwick's Concert: Not Enough of a Good Thing

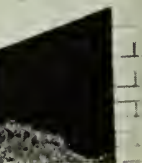

She came on stage in hot pink pants, smiled and began to sing. The voice was familiar, since the Reng Center had been playing Dionne Warwick albums for weeks as an advertisement for the concert.

The audience was responsive and large—too large, in fact, since a section of non-existent seats had been sold.

She sang for one hour, then left the stage during a long ovation. When she did not return for an encore, some students became restless. Others became openly resentful when an SGA official announced that the concert was over, that everyone could go home.

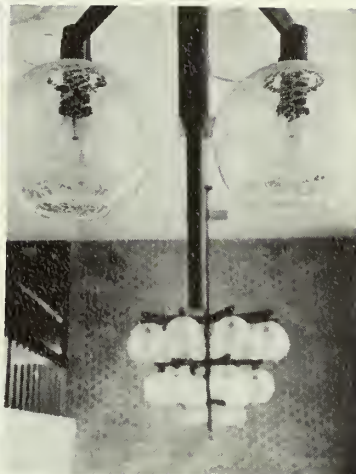

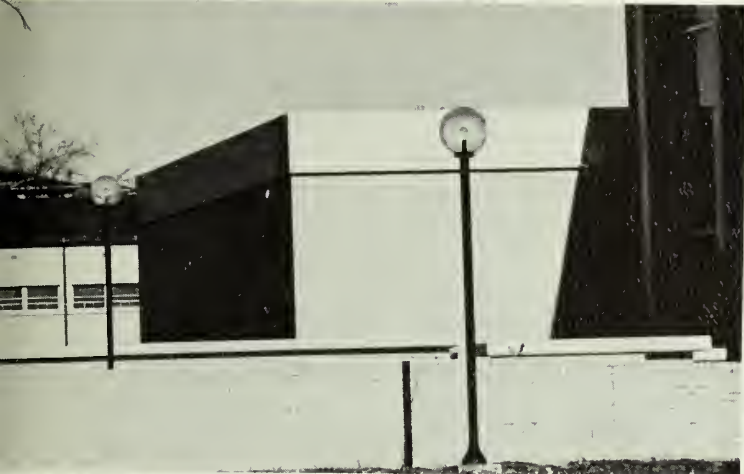

"It was good while it lasted," some said as they filed out of the field house. But the girls who had signed out of the dorm for two hours under the pretense of going to the concert said something altogether different later that night.

Dionne sang out: "What the world needs is love, sweet love." Leroy agreed.

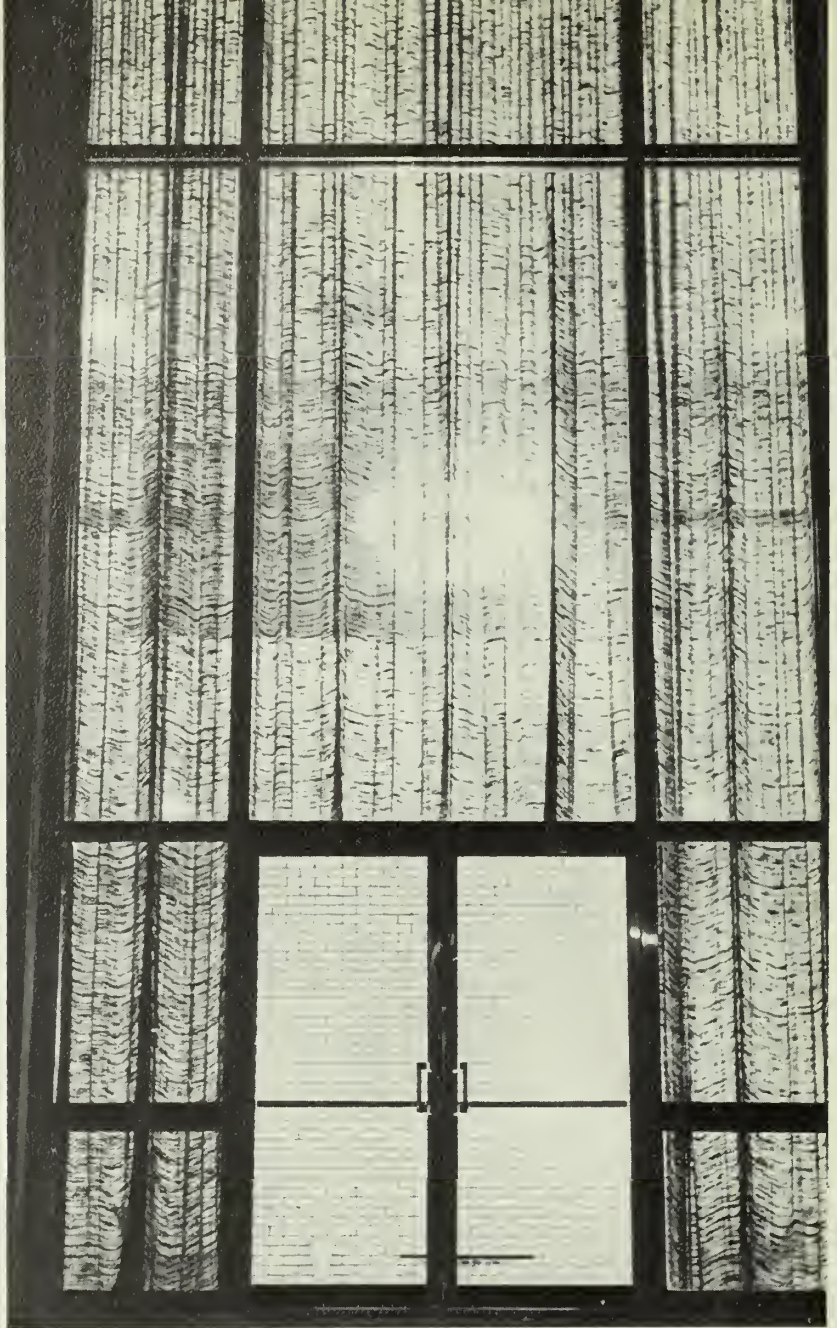

FINE ARTS

ASU Artists Move Into New Building

The College of Fine Arts finally got a respectable home for its nationally renowned departments last spring when the Fine Arts Center was completed. The "Taj Mahal" (as the art faculty calls it) was constructed at a cost of 1.2 million dollars; it houses the art, drama and music departments.

From the rats, creaky stairs and cramped conditions of the "old barn", the upperclassman began the year awed by their new surroundings, while the freshmen moved in unimpressed, taking all for granted. The new building features such facilities as a listening library, recital hall and spacious art gallery, in addition to ample work room for all the departments.

Yet, "four walls do not a home make", and an often-heard comment from art and music students in their sterile new home is: "This place just doesn't have that atmosphere the barn did". (Nevermore, the pigeons that would coo in harmony to a musician's routine practice session.) Artists who are accustomed to working into the wee hours on some project in the old building are now hustled out, since the doors are locked at 10 p.m.

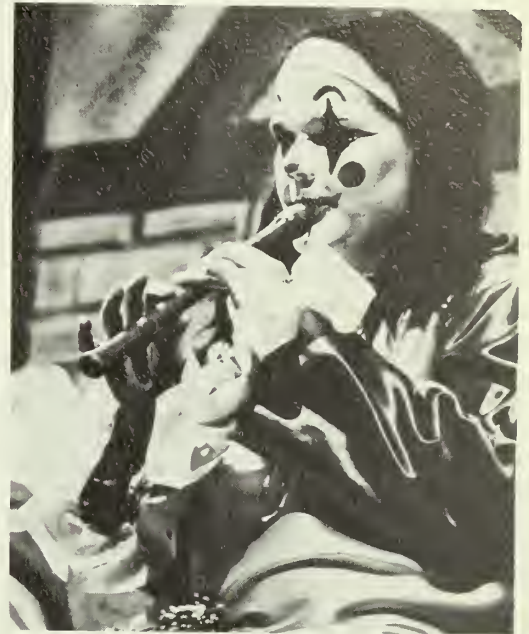

Janet Shoemate (right), as the servant girl Columbina, constantly played tricks on her companions. In the scene below, she and Arlecchino (Jim Lewis) befuddled other players by posing as an enchanted apple tree.

Dr. James Palmer, director of the play, occasionally found the antics of his actors more amusing than the script.

Clown-musicians, such as Carrie Snapp, provided flute and drum accompaniment for the other performers.

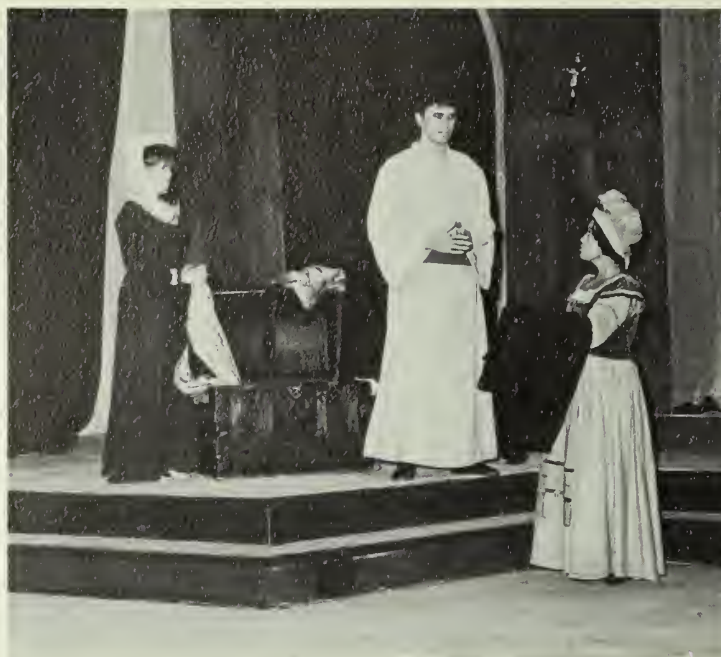

“The Strolling Players” First Production for Drama Division

The opening production of the ASU theatrical season was “The Strolling Players,” a slap-stick comedy in the tradition of the Commedia dell’Arte, set in a town square in Europe in the 17th century. Although the play was primarily aimed at children, authors Christian Moe and Darwin Payne gave it a universal appeal with its fast action and rousing song and dance, as evidenced by the large crowds that attended the production.

'Becket' Moving Experience For Audience, Cast

The honor of God or the honor of the king: these were the contrasting ideas in Jean Anouilh's "Becket," presented by the ASU Drama Department in December. Dr. James Palmer made use of all talent and facilities available in producing this intricate story of the love-hate relationship between King Henry II of England and Thomas Becket, Archbishop of Canterbury.

Harry Allen portrayed King Henry II, who was obsessed with his love for Becket, portrayed by Art Stewart. The actors were supported by elaborate scenery, unusual lighting and sound effects, and professionally-designed costumes.

Becket's love was thwarted by his loyalty to the king.

Church-state intrigue provided framework for much of the action in the play.

From a life of soldiering and worldliness, Thomas Becket (Art Stewart) took one quick step into a life of piety.

Ellen Arrington and Phil Barton played the lovers caught up in the chaos of their surroundings.

Social Satire Adds Variety To Productions

Delores Stroud and Jim Lewis (above), and Libby Smith (right) kept the audience alert with comic lines.

"You Can't Take It With You," was a relaxed satire of the Wall Street of the thirties. Centered around two young lovers, Alice Sycamore and Tony Kirby, portrayed by Ellen Arrington and Phil Barton, the play followed the activities of the Sycamores as they defied the conventions of New York society.

The eccentric occupations of the characters—from raising snakes to selling fireworks—made for delightful situations in this comedy by Moss Hart and George F. Kaufman.

After producing a children's play and a moving drama, Dr. James Palmer went to the lighter side with this play, and further proved his versatility as a director.

Hugh Smith (above) and Martha Cooper (left) played two of the more eccentric characters in the production.

Talent, Energy Produce Unique Sound of Marching Indian Band

They converged upon the campus early this fall to begin the blending and mixing of individual talents into a unique sound. They were the 126 veterans and beginners comprising the ASU Marching Indian Band. During the hot hours of practice and punishment, pushups were meted out to the novices in red beanies by veterans in sunglasses and shorts for missed steps and sour notes.

After weeks of practice and drill the red and black-uniformed members stepped off into a half-time show that earned a standing ovation in the rain at War Memorial Stadium. Throughout the season, juniors Ross Beck, drum major, and Carol Rand, head majorette, led the marching Indians with high steps and intricate routines.

Gestapo tactics by upperclassmen kept freshmen in line.

Grid Season Done, Band Deserts Marching Field for Concert Stints

ASU dance band, The Tribe, gave music students a chance to display their versatility.

Dan Ross, who wielded the baton for the Pep Band, distinguished himself in fracas with cheerleaders.

Band members prove they can play as well sitting down as they can while gyrating on the football field.

Greeks

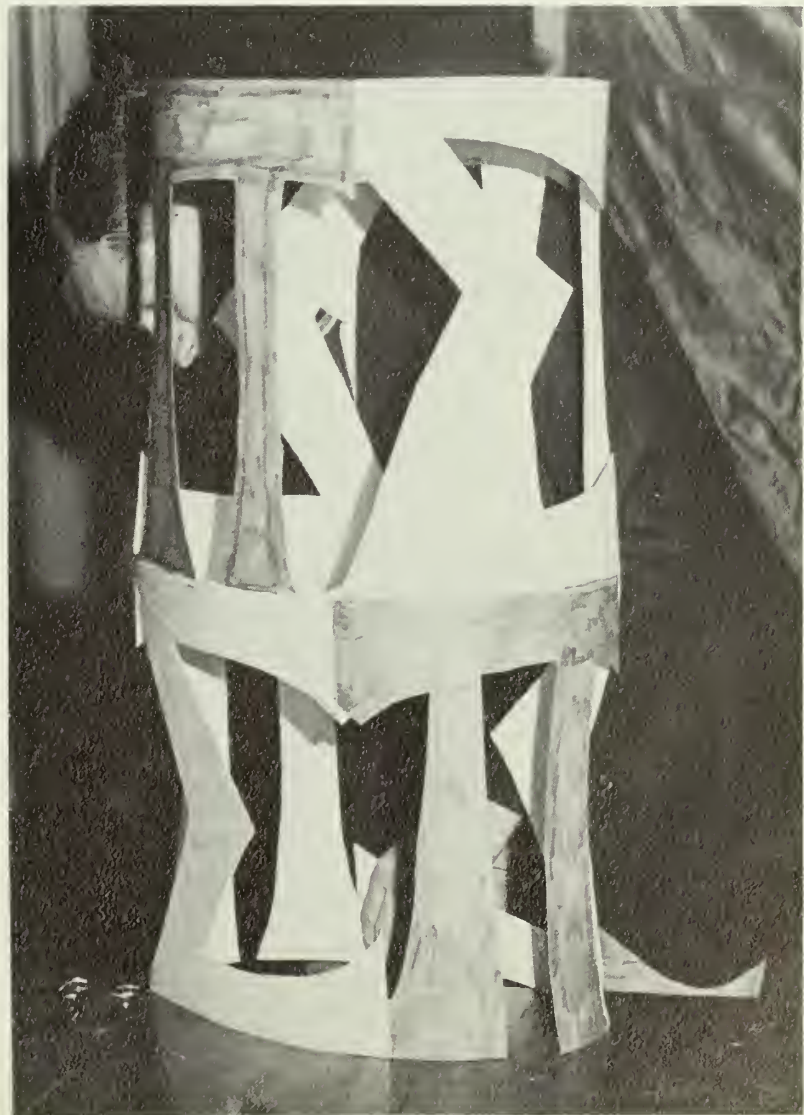

The girls cry, sing sentimental songs and hug each other. The boys laugh, howl bawdy ballads and slap backs. Both methods work equally well. Greeks are masters of the hard and soft sell; they have to be to survive. So, twice a year, they plunge headlong into the essential ordeal to propagate the species—rush.

Rush Gets Greeks Back in Gear

LXA Makes It Seven Straight In Alpha Omicron Pi Songfest

"They won again," said the disgruntled Sig Ep as he loosened his tie and slumped out of the auditorium. He meant the Lambda Chi's: they had just won the Alpha Omicron Pi Songfest for the seventh straight time. Sigma Phi Epsilon got the second place trophy again and, again, vowed to upset the Lambos next year. AOPi won first in the sorority division. Greeks pledged for musical ability proved their worth, molding raw voices into strangely harmonious sounds after day and night practices. Non-singers became expert mouthers. Hours of rehearsal aimed at being "culturally uplifting" (but encouraged by fines for practice absences) culminated in one evening's performance.

Alpha Omicron Pi singers won second straight trophy with a German Bach chorale and "Shoes."

AOPi, LXA Rally in Little 500

"Dean Moore, will you please get off the track?" As the announcement blurted out, the crowd came to life and Lambda Chi Alpha's "Little 500" was off and running. Exuberant Greeks and curious independents turned out in force and packed the Aggie Road freeway to watch host LXA and Alpha Omicron Pi repeat as winners in the fraternity and sorority division of the push cart derby. Phi Mu peddled its way to victory in the "Tricycle Grand Prix." Pam Fuhr was crowned "Little 500 Queen," and her royalty consisted of representatives of all ASU Greek organizations.

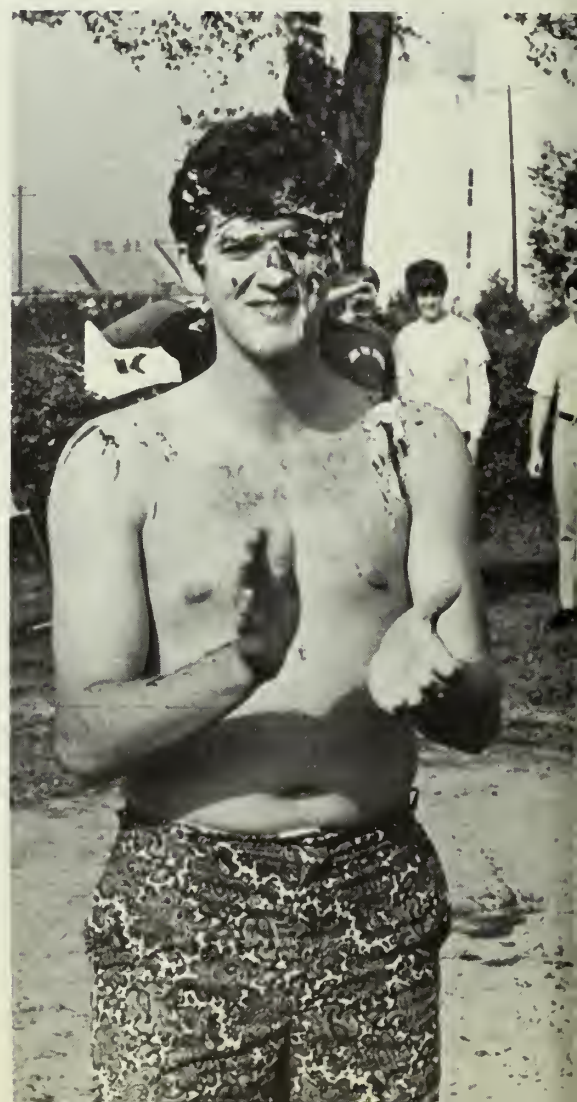

Winford ogles something other than the action.

AOPi's were all smiles until their wobbly trike fell apart at the last minute.

Chaotic Mass Mudbath Ends Pike Olympics

Pi Kappa Alpha's "Little Olympics" is the only event on campus that gives sororities a legal chance to sling mud at each other. Competition was violent and disqualifications were many this year, but justice was done since both winners and losers walked away in the same shape at the end—filthy. Even onlookers ended up in the infamous mud pit, and the orgy did not stop until everyone in sight was befouled. Vying for points in events like the chug-a-lug (cokes, that is), tug-of-war, pillow-fight and egg-drop, Alpha Gamma Delta managed to compile a few more points than runners-up Phi Mu and Alpha Omicron Pi. The only real winners, however, were those smart enough to leave before the final event.

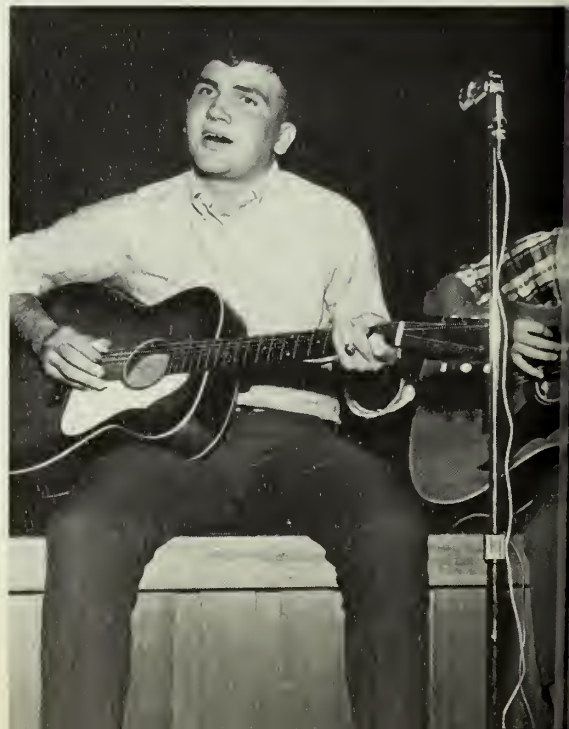

Folk Singers Win Alpha Gam Trophy

Vocal talent won the judges' approval and votes at the annual Alpha Gamma Delta Talent Show, as 14 contestants representing as many organizations competed for the top three positions. Alpha Gamma Delta's unofficial entry was emcee Jan Harrell, who quipped her way through the evening as she coordinated the show and amused the audience. Pi Kappa Alpha's "Noah and the Ark" comedy skit—while not exactly a demonstration of talent—proved to be a crowd favorite since it provided a change from the seemingly unvaried fare of vocal selections.

After the contestants' performances, the audience became restless and talkative as they endured the long wait and Jan's drawnout announcements before learning that Preston Foster's and David Massey's folk music selections had been awarded the first place trophy. Jo Ella Todd secured second place with her vocal selection, and David Dunham's folk music presentation won third.

Emcee Jan Harrell could have won the show as a comedy act.

The talent show might have been named "Hootenanny Revisited" because of the number of folk-singing acts. David Massey and Preston Foster (above left) plunked and thumped their way to a first place trophy, while freshmen Eddie Reddick and Jack Montgomery (lower left) teamed up to do folk-rock renditions. David Dunham (left) used a soft touch to win third place.

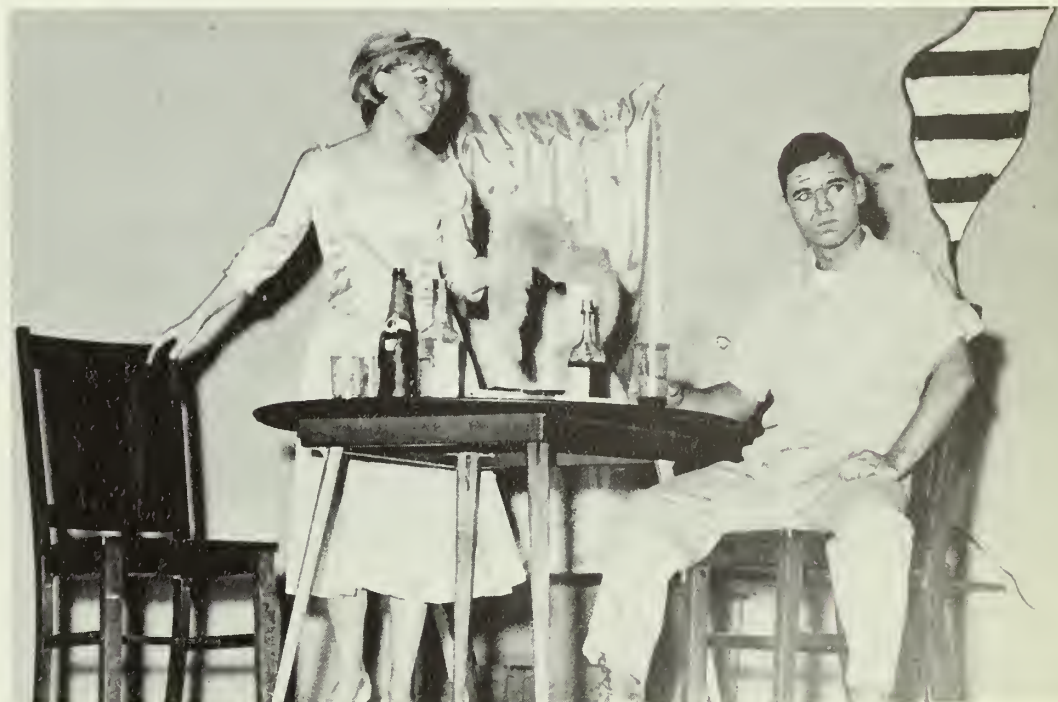

Phi Mu's and Sig Ep's display their trophies.

Musical Again Wins Playhouse

Flying glass, hurled stones, screaming shrews, and forgotten lines. . . an evening of entertainment at the Phi Mu Playhouse, '67. The presentations were of higher caliber than in past years and showed much versatility on the part of the six fraternity-sorority combinations. The Playhouse was held in the recently renovated Wilson Auditorium, and the setting added a more professional air.

Even before the curtain was raised, there was a small(?) premonition that the Sig Ep-Phi Mu condensed version of "Carousel" would walk away with the first place trophy. It was no surprise, then, when the judges announced their decision.

Director-Actress Ellen Arrington made Shakespeare's words sound like her own, and received the Best Actress Award. Old-timer Dick Walker, Best Actor, portrayed Billy Bigelow (naturally).

Clown-clad Alpha Gams paraded, chanted and carried home a new trophy.

Snoopy's motto, "Happiness is a big stinky," won snide laughs for the Sig Eps as well as first place.

Sig Eps Win Teke Fingerbowl

The parade marshal blew his whistle, officially opening the 18th annual festival of crudities commonly known as the Tau Kappa Epsilon "Fingerbowl." Balloon-bosomed cheerleaders chanted encouragement to the host team, but nothing seemed to help the Tekes as Sigma Phi Epsilon handily won the flag-tag football contest, 7-0. Attendance was good, with all the sororities showing up dressed in costumes ranging from clowns to gangsters, but after the announcement of the sorority contest winners at halftime, the stadium emptied somewhat. Alpha Gamma Delta used a "Carnival of Cards" theme to win first place, and Sig Ep's "Snoopy" statue won in the fraternity division. The crowd was amused at halftime by the TKE "Rubber Band," and twirler Jan Harrell.

Teke president Cecil Holifield poses with fingerbowl royalty.

Tekes, rallied on by President Panda, have been influential in promoting school spirit. Their cheers, however, turned tinny in the face of the Sig Eps' victory.

Sig Eps Have Active Year

Sigma Phi Epsilon began its activities this year with a banquet for new faculty members.

In competitive activities, the fraternity won the second place trophy for their Homecoming display, and took first place in the Phi Mu Playhouse for the second straight year.

Active in sports, the Sig Ep's defeated TKE in the Finger Bowl, and again sponsored the All-Greek Bowling Tournament.

As a service to the community, they collected $698.87 for the Heart Fund.

Singing and parading, Sig Eps prepare to pin a new sweetheart at the annual Queen of Hearts Ball.

Valerie Gullia registers her delight as the announcement is made that she is the new sweetheart of Sigma Phi Epsilon.

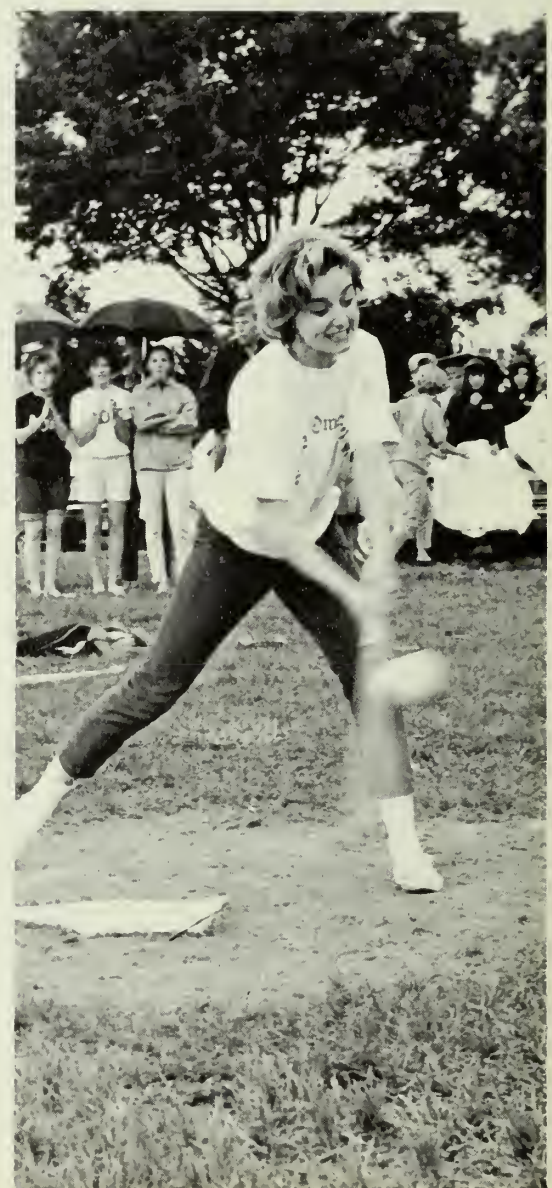

Teaming up with Phi Mu, SPE won the Phi Mu play-house for the second straight year.

Dean Robert Moore was guest speaker at the anniversary banquet.

Sorority women (top of page and right) released unlady-like tensions during Sigma Pi Softball Tournament.

Jennifer Ware was pinned as Sigma Pi sweetheart at the Orchid Ball.

Sigma Pi Celebrates 20th Anniversary

The Alpha Pi Chapter of Sigma Pi became the first national fraternity on the Arkansas State campus in 1948. This year it celebrated its 20th Anniversary with a banquet and other varied activities. Under the guidance of their advisors, R. L. Ferralasco, Captain Tom Davis, and Captain Randall Ford, the Sigma Pi's sponsored the Orchid Ball, a social highlight of the year, and helped to stimulate intramural competition by continuing the annual Sigma Pi Softball Tournament.

Robert Ferralasco, fraternity advisor, was on hand at Sigma Pi functions throughout the year.

Miss Universe Visits Chi Omega

Underprivileged children were entertained in the Chi O suite in conjunction with their "Christmas Kindness" project.

Participation in all phases of campus life set the pace for members and pledges of Omicron Zeta chapter of Chi Omega.

The year was full of surprises. Homecoming was brightened by a visit from Miss Universe 1967, Sylvia Louise Hitchcock, a Chi Omega from the University of Alabama. Two national officers, Mrs. Richmond L. McCarty, secretary, and Mrs. L. R. Bowker, treasurer, held a chapter workshop.

The sorority also held its annual "Christmas Kindness" project to help make Yuletide happier for a needy Jonesboro family, as well as other philanthropic projects. Mrs. E. C. Barton is Chi Omega sponsor.

Alpha Tau Omega Gets Charter

ATO's decked out fraternity quarters for rush.

The new Arkansas Eta Gamma chapter of Alpha Tau Omega became the seventh fraternity at Arkansas State Jan. 27.

The presentation of the charter by the national ATO president climaxed several years of effort by the original Arkadians to go Greek. The initial eight-man group started in 1964, expanded rapidly, then renamed itself Chi Sigma while attempting to obtain a charter from Sigma Chi. When those efforts proved futile, the group took steps to affiliate with Alpha Tau Omega.

Activities for the year included an annual basketball banquet.

It was a happy day for the KA's when they hauled up their official flag for the first time.

Statesmen Installed As Only Kappa Alpha Chapter in Arkansas

The Statesmen, a respected intramural sports and social organization for two years, became the only chapter of the Kappa Alpha Order in Arkansas when it received its charter as Delta Eta Chapter early this year.

The Statesmen grew from a small group organized in 1964 to participate in intramural athletics to an independent social club with a membership of 72. The group captured the intramural sweepstakes trophy two years in a row.

Dr. Delbert Lacefield (left), KA province commander, congratulated Harold Fuller, president of the new ASU chapter, after initiation ceremonies in October.

Brandishing their trademark—a rebel flag—the KA's added southern spirit to athletic activities.

Many KA officials were on hand for the installation.

Kappa Delta Becomes Fifth Sorority at ASU

The ASU Greek system added a national sorority numbering 61,000 members to its ranks March 9 when the A-State chapter of Kappa Delta received its charter.

Thirty-one girls accepted bids Oct. 6 from the Southwestern chapter to become the fifth sorority on campus.

The group's first activities included distributing special Christmas seals designed by a sorority member to help support six beds at the Crippled Children's Hospital in Richmond, Va., and selling magazines to help finance the building of chapter houses.

"KD Hades" was the theme of the first rush party.

ZTA Joins Greek List At A-State

Zeta Tau Alpha, Arkansas State's sixth national sorority, came on campus in January when the Collegians, a local women's social organization, colonized with aid from the ZTA's Beta Sigma Chapter from Southwestern at Memphis.

Two transfer members conducted the rush and pledging of 13 new girls and 26 former Collegians. Installation of members occurred in late spring.

The new Zeta Omicron Colony's service projects were collecting toys for hospitalized children and promoting YWCA activities in the Jonesboro public schools. The national project of the 136 Zeta Tau Alpha Chapters is working with the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

Upon hearing of their new status, the Zeta's quickly took down their old sign and improvised a new one.

The new sorority used a sailor skit at its first rush party.

Spring Rush: Same Song, Second Verse

Outwardly, it's all smiles and painted cardboard: the great benevolence . . . party time, Greek-style . . . everybody welcome.

Then—when nothing is left of the gay scene except limp crepe paper and spilled cokes—come the midnight cut sessions.

"I'll just die if we don't get her!"

"This man is a sharp troop . . ."

"But she's a legacy!"

"He reeks—a super-cull."

"She's just not sorority material."

"What about his grades?"

"Who's she to talk about somebody's reputation!"

"Does he have the jack?"

"She says she wants us, but she's going to their party."

"I just don't think I could call him my brother."

"Shutup, dammit. Let's get this over with."

Moses with a broken staff?

A-State SGA Has Typical Year

Webster defines the word "govern" as "to control and direct the making and administration of policy." It has long been a matter for debate whether or not the ASU Student Government Association lives up to its name. Somehow, the sponsoring of dances, procurement of entertainment, selling of second-hand books and erection of signs don't seem to fall under the category of government.

Candidates for SGA office each spring turn the campus into a "Promise Land" flowing with milk and honey intentions for reform and improvement. Unfortunately, the newly-elected leaders usually emerge as impotent Moses' incapable of parting the red tape sea thrown up by administrative pharaohs.

Members of the SGA can't really be blamed for this year's disappointments. It wasn't their fault the student body was apathetic, that attempts to write the promised new constitution were statemated, that Dionne Warwick only sang an hour, that teachers made wholesale textbook changes and sabotaged the SGA bookstore's profits

No one questions the claim that the SGA has a "tough job." But no one ever bothers to question just what that job is, either.

Dionne Warwick's mini-concert was one of the events sponsored by the SGA this year.

Vice presidents were Carol Rand and Cecil Holifield.

Senators were (front row) Terry MacLeod, Sharon Kay Pierce, (back row) Gary Rose, Victor Vaughn and Steve Reynolds.

Appointed officers were (front) Ouida Jackson, (back row) Van Ellis, Robert W. Harper and Jim Best.

Majorettes

The fanfare began, and with it came high-stepping majorettes leading the Marching Indian Band into another intricate halftime routine. Under the guidance of head majorette Carol Rand and feature twirler Ouida Jackson, the majorette line presented many complicated choreographic performances (some of which even managed to delay the mad rush to the concession stand).

Judy's got a brand new bag: head cheerleader Judy Ramey was responsible for many of the innovations used this year to promote school spirit.

ASU Cheerleaders

Bad weather, a losing streak and a feud between the cheerleaders and pep band dampened what had been one of the best showings of school spirit in recent years. A-State's cheerleaders tried time and again to instill enthusiasm in seemingly nonchalant crowds, but the efforts were usually in vain. (When the cheerleaders tried to vary their simple cheers, most students merely watched, occasionally joining in the yell-ending applause.) Animosity over who was in charge of the shout-sessions resulted in derogatory statements decorating campus sidewalks, but concessions offered by both sides paved the way for future cooperation.

Newspaper Has Controversial Year

After a bombardment of complaints (profane and otherwise) from amateur critics in early fall, Herald editors made a quick retaliatory attempt to improve the image of the "fourth estate."

Cries for liberalization were common among students, although professional ethics and libel laws made it impossible to produce the scandal sheet most of the campus would have approved. The salvaged editorial policy stressed student involvement, and for the first time in the Herald's recent history, the editors polled the student body to survey its views on current affairs, including campus and national politics. Opinionated letters were even requested from interested students, although few were received.

Equality for Greeks was a prime consideration, so in answer to charges of "unfair representation" and "Lambda Chi domination," the editors often padded or cut copy to boost the "Greek ego."

Though the student newspaper maintained a conservative format, at least the Herald made an honest effort to satisfy the sometimes-opposing desires of students and administration.

Feature editors — Terry McCord, Dianne Gage and Dale Butler.

Advisor Tom Manning (left) and assistant editor Dianne Gage seemed chagrined after discovering the publisher had "misplaced" four pages of this yearbook.

When there was work to be done, photographers Dale Butler, Gordon Morris, Marion Meredith and Keith Ashcraft usually found a place to hide.

Editors Supervise Yearbook Production

Nancy Kemp (second from left) and co-editor Kay Parks were in charge of the class section.

Copy editor Betty Stanley (right) not only did her job well, but also kept the staff entertained with dog barks and witty commentary.

Presenting a bizarre drama of the academe: The Production of a Yearbook.

The Setting: Room 209, Reng Center.

The Players: 30-odd students armed with pencils, rulers, carbon paper.

Scene I: It is 7 p.m., Wednesday night. The players are gathered around tables too small to accommodate them. The mood is fresh and jovial—an early mood. The room is already filling with tobacco smoke. Betty Stanley is making wry jokes. H. T. Moore is persisting, despite protests, in adding his belching bass to the soul music on the intercom (which is turned up much too loud). The editor is chewing his pipe stem and screaming unheard instructions into the din. Somehow, layouts are being drawn, copy is being written. A deadline, as always, is imminent.

Scene II: It is now 3 a.m. The Wigwam is closed. The cigarette supply has dwindled. The pencils have become worn-down stubs nobody takes time to sharpen. Dishevelment prevails. Many of the players have exited this scene, leaving crumpled paper, full ashtrays, and leaky coke cups behind. The assistant editor is sprawled across a table, asleep. The layout editor is staring at the clock in disbelief. The photographers are in the darkroom sloshing out pictures they should have printed last week. The editor is laconic. The room is too quiet for concentration. Dialogue is sparse; what little is spoken is sarcastic. The time for being compatible has long since passed.

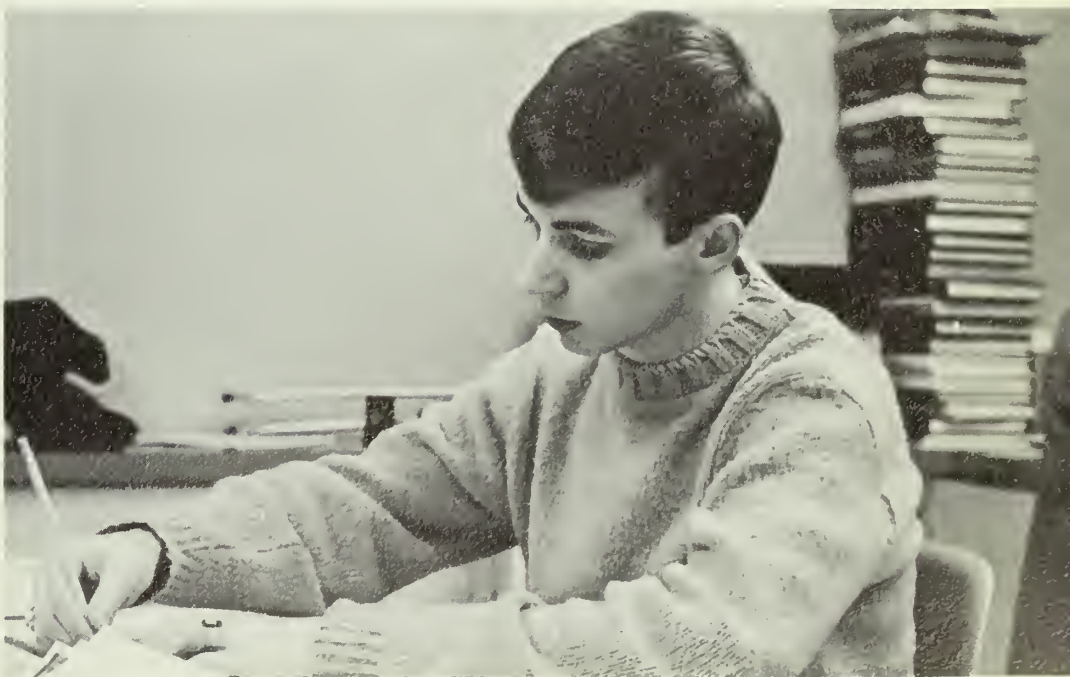

(This being a cyclic drama, it is repeated intermittently from September until April. Right after a deadline has been met, when the players are feeling giddy and secure, it is played as an overwrought comedy. Should difficulties arise, the mood becomes melancholy and the stage is set for tragedy.)

The climax comes, jubilantly, when the final pages are sent to the publisher. The action then subsides into a denouement of waiting, anticipating. The curtain is rung down when the finished book arrives.

Players now exit the stage to assume their less demanding roles as students.

ASU-TV became a reality this year as television students combined their talents to produce and televise several Friday evening programs. Courses in TV are being expanded to supplement those already offered in radio. KASU-FM originates the "Indian Sports Network," which enables Arkansas State fans throughout the area to follow the Indians via audio action. The student-operated radio station broadcasts music, news, concerts, lectures, and special events to help keep the ASU student body and residents within a 100-mile radius of the campus entertained and informed. Technical and on-the-job experience in radio and television are gained by majors and minors in Radio-TV Journalism at the new station facilities located in the Radio-TV building.

SPRING SPORTS

Spring sports took on a new look to go with a new name last spring. The new name was Arkansas State University, and the new look was that of a winner. Baseball and tennis had their first winning seasons in years, and the track team continued to gain national recognition. Only the golf team finished in the state of mediocrity that had marred ASU's year ending sports slates. The esprit de corps of the baseball team matched that of the victorious football and basketball teams earlier in the year, and the thinclads of track and field developed an air of unselfishness which is unusual in a sport that is usually noted for individual performances.

Ryan Chosen All-American

Dana Ryan, ASU's spark-plug second baseman, was named to the college division All-American baseball team. Ryan rewrote the Indian record book as he led the Tribe to its best season ever. Dana set records for most hits (48), most runs (39) and most stolen bases (19). His .381 batting average was tops for ASU, and one of the best in the nation. Ryan was also an outstanding fielder, and he helped the ASU glove men to set team records for most double plays (34) and best average (.959). Ryan has turned down a professional contract so that he can complete his collegiate career.

Jimbo Callaway gained All-SLC honors for the third time. Here he scores against Delta State at Kell Field.

Freshman pitcher Rusty Bourg led the Indians in wins with seven. Below, the last out was made, and ASU was the SLC baseball champion. Bedlam broke out in the dugout as anxious teammates rushed into the field to greet the victors. The celebration moved to the team's motel quarters and lasted long into the night.

'67 SLC Champs

The high-flying Arkansas State baseball team, captured the 1967 Southland Conference championship, ending Trinity's three-year domination of the sport. The Indians used the big fielding play and the big hit to sweep the tournament in three games. A long bus ride to Beaumont, Tex., was followed by an 8-2 first game victory over Trinity. Lamar Tech served as the Tribe's second victim, falling 4-2. The championship game gave Trinity's Tigers a second chance to stop the red-hot Indians, but strong pitching by John Ford and Bobby Sherrill helped the Tribe to the crown 4-2. Coaches Ike Tomlinson and Rich Johnson got a much deserved victory bath after the win. Shortstop Bob Browning, and third baseman Jim Callaway were All-SLC for the third time, while pitcher Rusty Bourg, outfielder Jimmy Mueller and second baseman Dana Ryan were first time choices.

Senior shortstop Bobby Browning is all smiles after homering over the new scoreboard in Kell Field to give ASU an early lead in its opening NCAA tourney clash. Below, first sacker Steve Morrison takes the throw and the Indians turn over one of their record 34 double plays.

Tribe Takes NCAA Crown Season Record 26-8-1

A-State's baseball Indians closed a very successful season by hosting and winning NCAA's Midwest Regional College Division Tournament. In the first game a rampaging Tribe dealt the U. of North Dakota a 6-3 setback. ASU came back for a 12-6 victory from Southeast Missouri. The Indians saw their chances of a clean sweep stopped by N. Dakota 7-6, but strong hitting gave State a 9-6 conquest and the tourney crown. ASU had six men named to the All-Tournament team—catcher Criss McGuire, second baseman Dana Ryan, shortstop Bob Browning, third baseman Jim Callaway, pitcher Dick Bethune and outfielder Jimmy Mueller. The victories in the tournament gave ASU its best record ever—26-8-1.

Relief pitcher and sometimes coach Jim Burke (7) tells Dan Barnhart to hold up at third. Barnhart later scored as the Indians toppled North Dakota 8-2 in a first round NCAA tourney clash. Directly above is Indian catcher Criss McGuire, a terror to opposing pitchers and a steady receiver behind the plate. "Choo" was among the nation's leading hitters for much of the season before a leg injury slowed him.

TRACK

Seniors David Young, Jeff Lansdale and Jerald Spencer (below) took first places in the SLC shot put, javelin and high jump. Robert Andrews, far upper right, was the other half of the Indians' freshmen vaulting duo. Jack Morrison and Randy Erwin ran on the relays and in other events.

A-State tracksters inserted their names in the school record books this year as the team enjoyed one of its best years yet. Jerald Spencer set an ASU and Arkansas collegiate record in the high jump with a leap of 6-9. Danny Carroll traveled 45-7 $\frac{3}{4}$ in the triple jump to set both ASU and state standards. Bob Giersberg assaulted the distance marks with timings of 4:08 in the mile, 1:53.4 in the 880, 9:04.6 in the two mile and 14:34 in the three mile. Jeff Lansdale and David Young were state leaders in the javelin and shot put events.

Efforts Fall Short; ASU Finishes Third

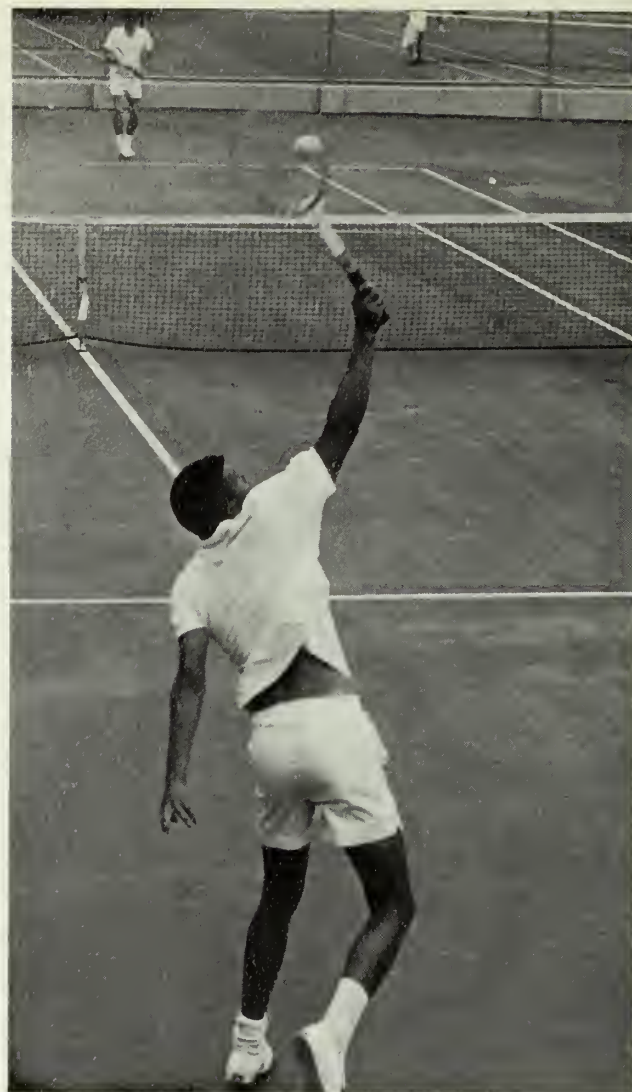

(Clockwise, from the top) Freshman Billy Bell was a consistent vaulter all spring long, and he took third in his event in the conference meet. Bob Giersberg breaks the tape at Beaumont, Tex., to set a SLC mile run record. Sprinter Billy Caputo (center) is nipped at the finish line by a runner from Alabama, one of the many major colleges ASU faced in track competition. Versatile Butch Brogdon blossomed into a fine javelin man and finished second in conference competition. Senior Eddie Pruitt gets off a triple jump leap at the SLC meet while Coach John Rose looks on.

Supreme efforts by ASU's track team fell just short of a second place finish in the SLC championship meet in Beaumont. A-State finished with 68 points, its best showing ever. Lamar Tech had to fight for its 77 points, and Abilene again won first place with 94 points, even though the Wildcats did not live up to their pre-meet performances. Bob Giersberg set a SLC record in the mile run, then came back for a second place finish in the 880 dash. Jerald Spencer took high point honors for ASU as he regained his high jump title, finished third in the intermediate hurdles and fourth in the triple jump. Other first place takers for ASU were Jeff Lansdale in the javelin and David Young in the shot put. Danny Carroll placed in all three jumping events.

Golfers, Netters Fall In SLC Play

Richard Brooks, right was elected captain of the tennis team while only a freshman. Below, Marlin Shipman blasts out of a sand trap at the SLC meet in Beaumont.

Golf and tennis, ASU's other minor spring sports, had their ups and downs. The netters, with freshman Richard Brooks leading the way, rolled up eight regular season victories, but they had troubles in the SLC tourney. It just wasn't the golf team's year as freshmen and sophomores carried much of the team's load. In SLC play, the linksters got off to a blazing start, but soon the only thing blazing was the hot Beaumont sun. The team was not used to playing 36 holes of golf in such hot, humid conditions, and A-State slipped from a comfortable third place to a cellar finish in SLC standings.

Mike Mitchell lines up a putt at Beaumont, while below, Jack Carson's racket and arm seem to disappear while returning the ball.

Senior Freddie Lewis was one of ASU's steadiest golfers. He earned four letters as an Indian linkster.

Coaches Strive For Excellence

Arkansas State University's coaches have won numerous awards, and this year was no exception. Athletic director and baseball coach J. A. "Ike" Tomlinson was this year's standard bearer as he was named by his colleagues as Coach of the Year in college division baseball. Ike was also honored as the Southland Conference's Spring Sports coach of the year. Football coach Bennie Ellender and basketball coach Marvin Speight faced situations to which they weren't accustomed—losing seasons. Coach John Rose was having problems even before track season began as he lost four hopefuls due to disciplinary problems. On the brighter side, tennis coach Don Floyd, who doubles as assistant athletic director, anticipates his finest season since tennis was revived as an active spring sport.

Coach Ike Tomlinson, top, was named college baseball's coach of the year. Coach Marvin Speight, right, watches his basketball charges during a workout.

INDIAN FOOTBALL

A year of great individual talent, team play, broken records and national exposure—but a losing record. Ironically, what was supposed to have been ASU's greatest season ever turned out to be perhaps the most disappointing. Living up to its pre-season billing and national ranking, the Tribe rolled past its first two opponents, but then lost more than a football game against The Citadel in the turning point of the season. Quarterback Tim Keane was lost for the balance of the season with a broken hand. The hopes for an impressive showing in the state's big city were drowned in the rain and in the defeat. The other four losses were almost equally heart-breaking as they were decided by a total of a mere eleven points. Many records, 18 in fact, were set, most of them coming on the connections between Keane and freshman Cecil LaGrone to end Gerald Jumper. The season was a bitter one for the many seniors who had been through three winning campaigns and who had envisioned a conference championship in their final year. But many more promising athletes now have a challenge to regain a greatness that was never really lost.

Senior Leaders

One of the biggest honors offered any athlete is the admiration of his teammates. Three seniors—halfback Benny Winford, end Gerald Jumper and linebacker Tommy Sain—garnered this year's team given awards at ASU. Sain, a transfer, was named the team's outstanding defensive player and also was elected co-captain with Winford. Benny didn't gather the headlines that many backs do, but he was a true leader as a blocker and, when called on, as a ball carrier or pass receiver. Jumper, one of the most exciting players to ever wear an ASU uniform, was named the team's outstanding offensive player. He rewrote A-State's pass receiving records this year as he snagged 47 passes for 727 yards, good for the Southland Conference lead in both categories. One of the biggest disappointments of an already disappointing season came when Jumper was left off the All-SLC first team, an honor he attained last year. He and Sain both received honorable mention.

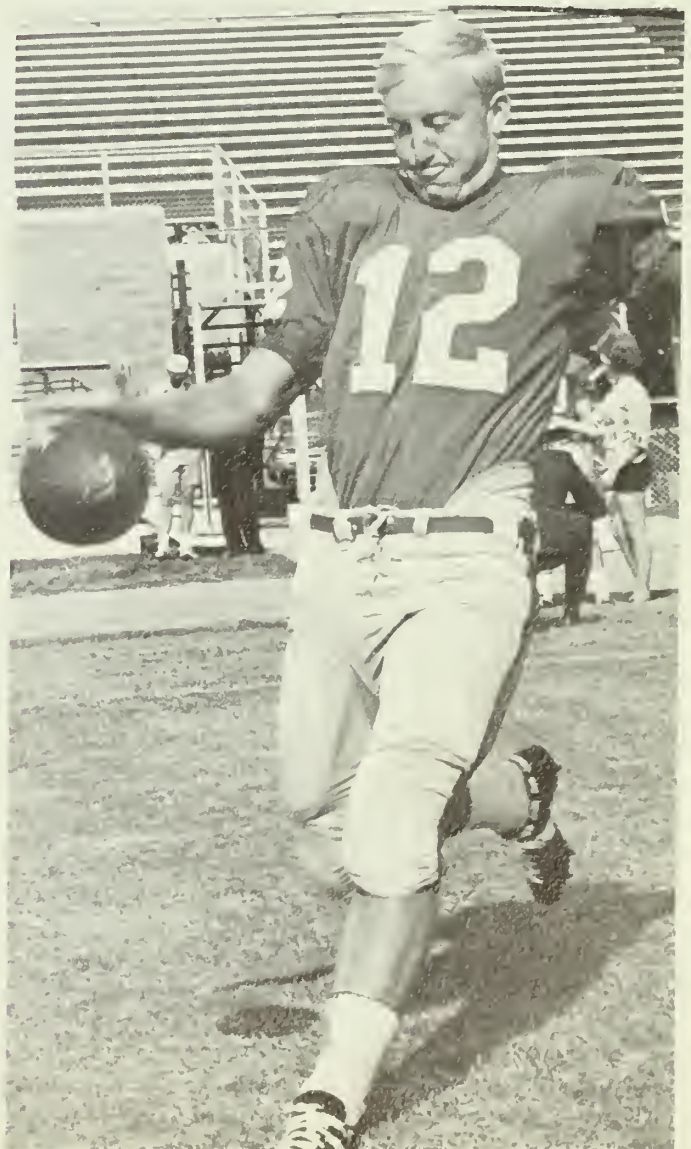

Defensive back Dick Ritchey, tackle Clovis Swinney and linebacker Bill Bergey were named to the All-SLC first team defensive unit. Ritchey was honored for the third time, while Swinney (above, a sophomore) and Bergey (below, a junior) received their initial first team berths.

ALL-SLC

Center Ron Worthen (55), a repeat selection, was ASU's only representative on the All-SLC first offensive unit. Fullback Steve Gankiewicz (20), the SLC's leading scorer the past two seasons, and quarterback Tim Keane, who missed five games with a broken hand, gained honorable mention. Sophomore punter Kevin McClelland, right, was named as the kicking specialist on the defensive unit. He sacrificed long yardage for the high kick which was almost impossible to return.

ASU Opens With Two Big Wins

ASU's first two contests looked almost like a replay of last season as the Tribe defeated Western Michigan University 21-8 and Tennessee Tech 15-7. Steve Gankiewicz, who set an SLC record in 1966 with 13 touchdowns, showed he could still find the end zone as he scored three touchdowns over the favored Bronco team at Kays Stadium, then scored again against Tennessee Tech. Ganko rambled for 163 yards against WMU as the record opening game crowd of 7,950 went away delighted. Tim Keane did an excellent job as a field general and gained 269 yards through the air in the two contests, his only complete games until the last contest. The defense came up with the big plays, intercepting seven passes, and one Tribe touchdown was scored when Bill Bergey recovered a blocked punt in the end zone.

Campus Fever Moves To Little Rock As Citadel Approaches

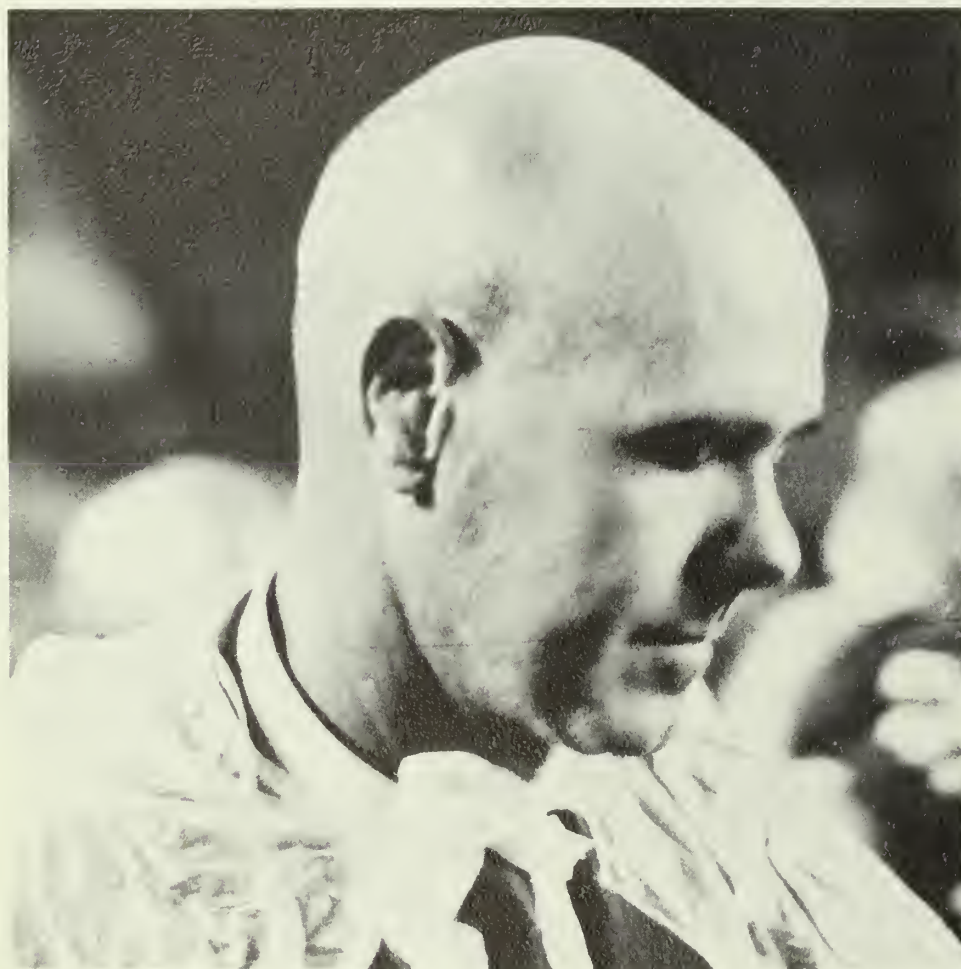

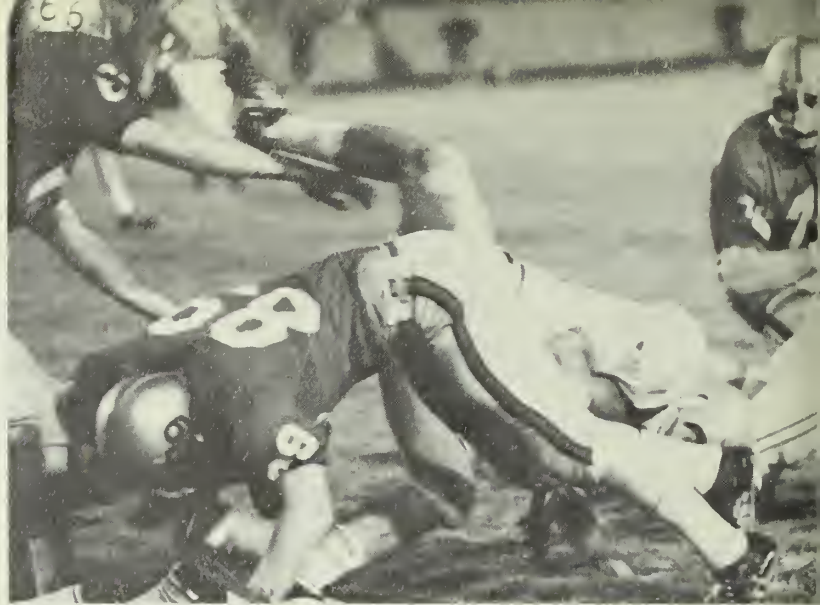

"Beat Hell outta Citadel." For an entire week that one thought dominated most ASU students. This was the chance, not only for the football team, but for Indian fans to prove that an Arkansas State University did exist. Preparations for the game and the festivities that went with it began early. A pep rally in the Field House, the first of many for ASU'ers, was held to officially start things. Everyone was high for the game early, and the peak of elation may have hit the football team a bit too early.

When Friday came, students packed their bags, iced down their coolers and headed south. Some flew, some drove, some even rode a bike. Many didn't know where they would sleep, but it made no difference—they were going. The rains chased off some of the expected crowd, but the students came anyway. Though the game was lost, the party wasn't. State-wide news media did a better job covering the student activities than they did the game.

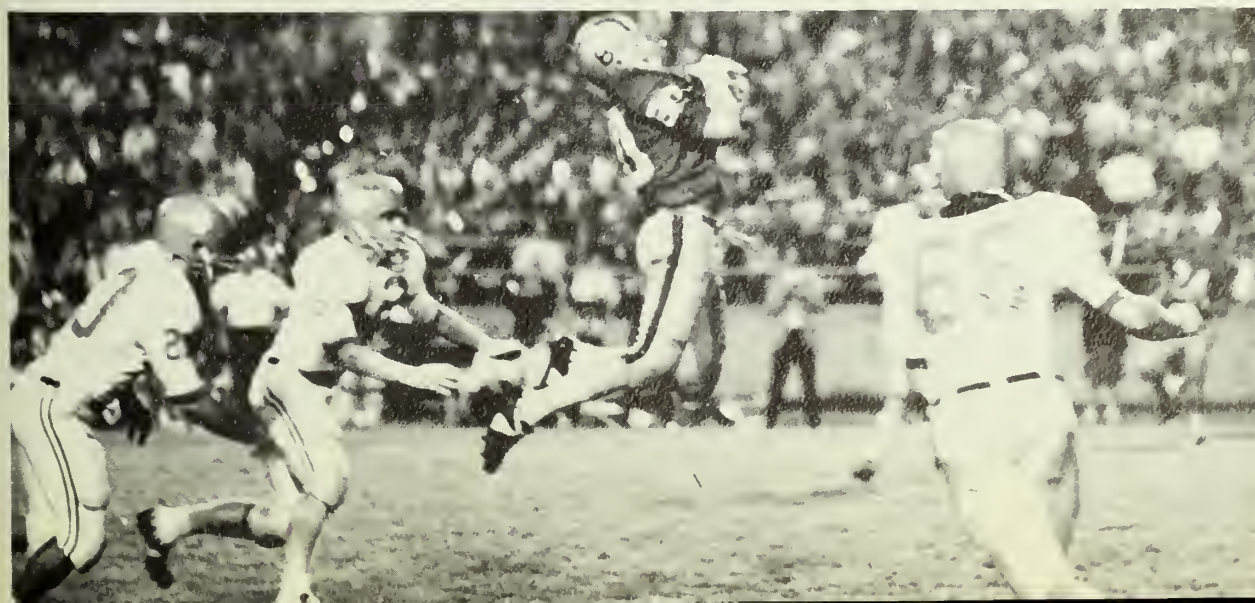

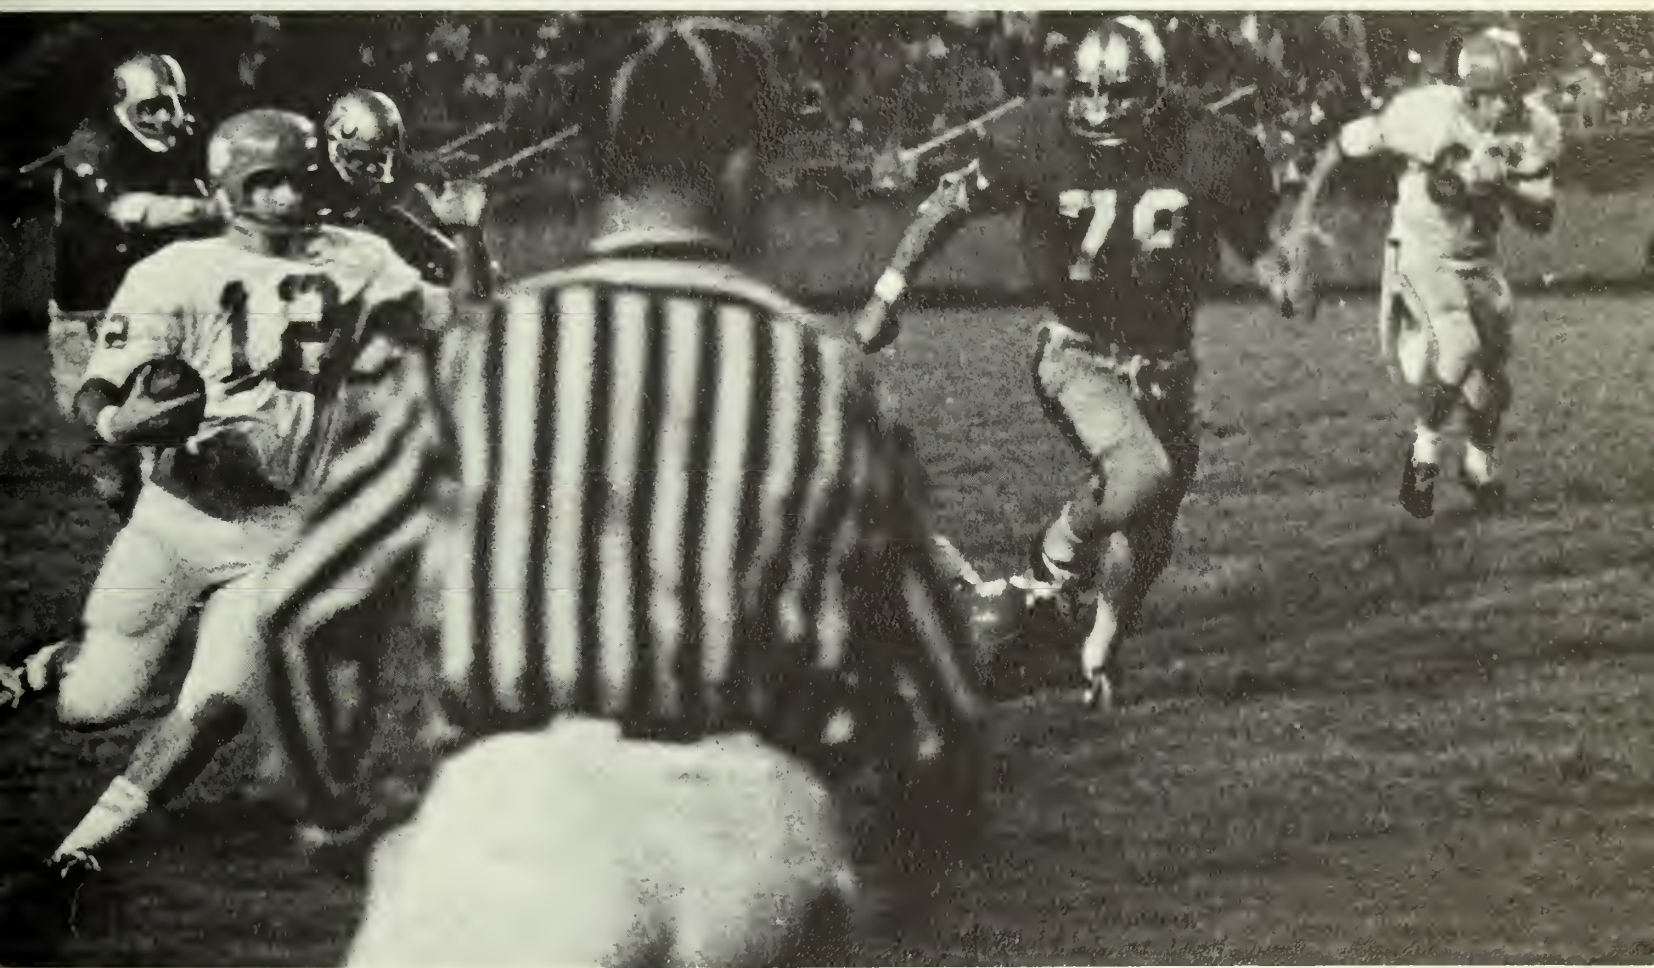

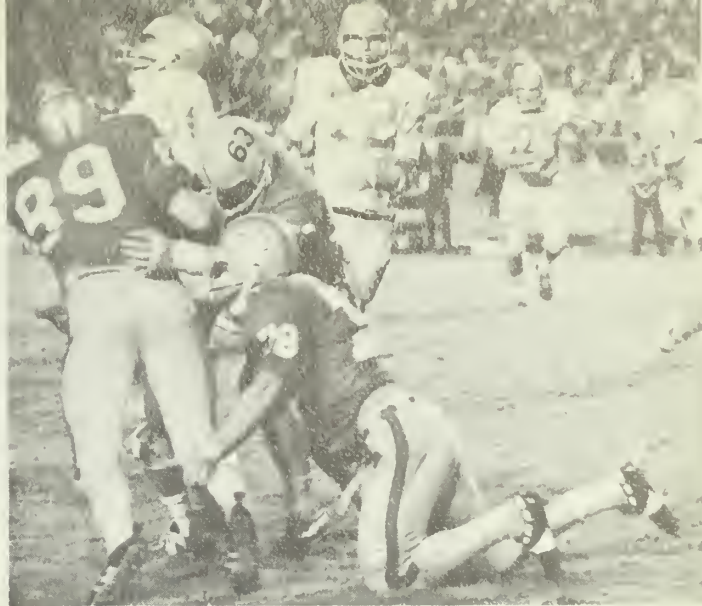

Little Rock opened its arms to ASU, and the fans were grateful. Everywhere you turned you could hear the words, "Wait till next year."

The "Spirit of ASU" abounded at the pep rallies in Little Rock although some didn't know whether they were supposed to be outdoors (top), or indoors (middle), but everyone made it to the game. Jumpin' Joe replaced Big Red Hog on the War Memorial Stadium signs. Lambda Chi's presented Gov. Rockefeller with a football which had been carried to Little Rock on a bicycle.

Tribe Hopes Crushed As 17,000 Fans Get Drenched

"The Citadel leads 7-0 but the Indians are driving," the play-by-play announcer exclaims. First and ten on the Bulldog 15-yard line. Gankiewicz carries over left tackle and gets piled up. He picks himself up and limps off the field for the remainder of the game. Two plays later, Keane fumbles a pitchout, and the drive is halted. Keane leaves the field holding his hand, and he doesn't return. Take spirits that are already dampened, add the loss of two important men, and suddenly you're behind 20-0. Finally, ASU made a last minute showing led by a young man named Cecil LaGrone. The freshman quarterback, seeing his first collegiate action, came out of shock and added a flying football to the already falling precipitation. Under extreme pressure, he completed 16 of 30 tosses, and despite two interceptions, he provided what was perhaps the brightest point of the game. Finally, LaGrone scored to end the scoring at 20-7. The players and coaches were also thinking, "Wait till next year."

Defensively, the Indians got a workout (across top and center). Jumper's leaping catches showed Central Arkansas why he was considered one of the state's best. The defection of Coach Ellender was felt by all.

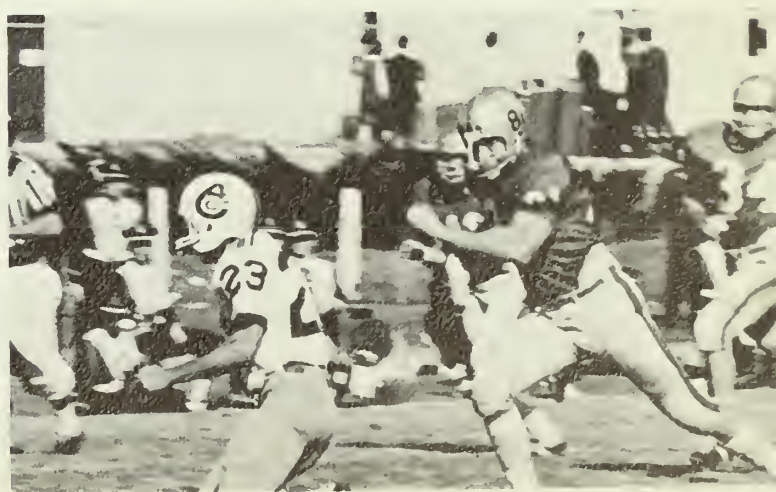

Gary Crane (85), a two-sport athlete, leads a tackle (top), and Virgil Peyton (84) shows his running strength after catching a pass. LaGrone and Coach Ellender muse over game plans on the bench while the defense is performing on the field. Pete Garris (32) intercepts a pass, and Steve Puryear (81) chases Abilene speedster Riley Dunn.

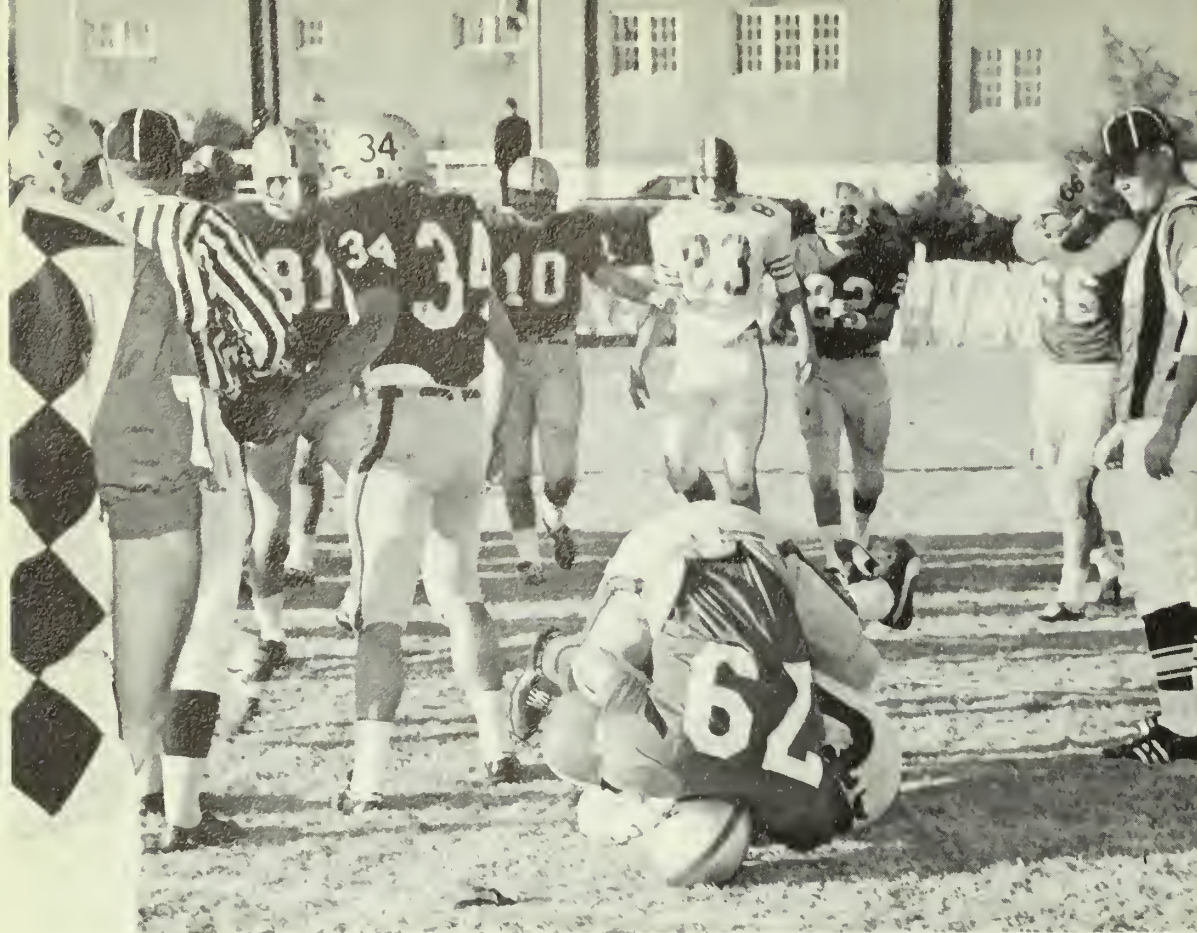

Tribe Rallies For Homecoming Win

Physically and mentally battered from the Citadel loss, ASU fell to homecrowd favorite Louisiana Tech at Ruston 6-3 in the first of what was to be many heart-breakers. The Indians had their chance for victory in the game's last minute, but sophomore fullback Denny Burns was stopped less than a foot from the goal.

An underhand pass and a field goal of record distance lifted the Tribe over Abilene Christian in its first SLC war. The Homecoming crowd was thrilled as Gankiewicz returned to action and scored on his first carry for a 7-0 ASU lead and again after a LaGrone to Virgil Peyton pass accounted for another six-pointer. But at the half, it was 14-14. With time running out, LaGrone passed underhanded to McGuigan for a 26 yard gain, and minutes later, Frank scored for a 21-14 lead. With a minute left, Mike Everett booted a record 49-yard FG to end it at 24-14.

Lamar and USL Pin On Bitter Losses

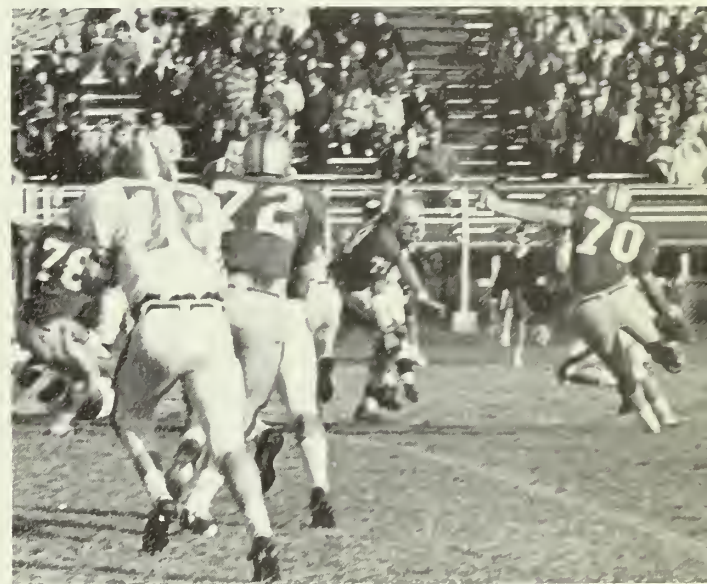

The Indians had little time to celebrate their Homecoming victory as they suffered two disheartening losses to Lamar Tech and the University of Southwestern Louisiana. At Beaumont, the Indians were sitting on a 17-14 lead in the fourth quarter when the bottom fell out. Lamar, finishing second in SLC, turned two fumbles into easy touchdowns. The Cardinals recovered a LaGrone fumble in the end zone for one TD, then pounced on a fumbled punt on the ASU 30-yard line and moved in for the game winning score. The Tribe scored one more tally, but the final score was still 28-23 as ASU again failed in an attempt to beat their seemingly perpetual conquerors.

At home against SW Louisiana, Everett booted field goals of 30 and 36 yards to set a school record total of seven for a season and give ASU a 6-0 halftime lead. But the Bulldogs scored quickly in the third period and hung on for a 7-6 win. Everett had a chance to win it with 14 seconds left, but his attempt from 33 yards was partially blocked and barely missed.

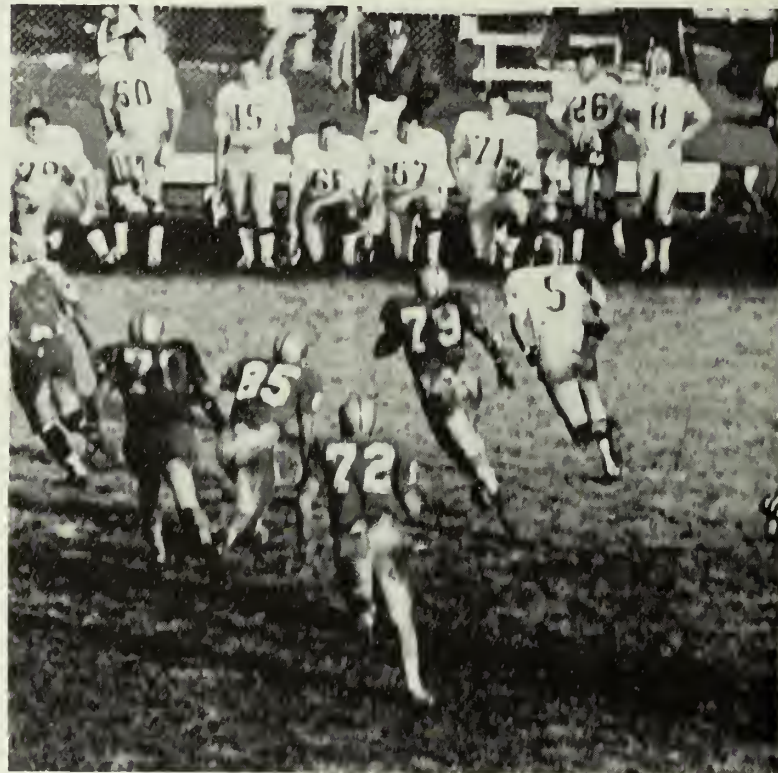

Clovis Swinney (79) balls up a Bulldog runner, unmindful of a discussion with an official (left). Jumper again shows his ability to catch the football in a crowd.

ASU Loses UTA Mud Fight; Trinity Win Ends Season

Disappointment hit another peak as the Tribe lost in its final bid for part of the SLC crown with a 16-14 loss to co-champ University of Texas at Arlington. The Indians came back the next week for a season ending victory over Trinity and a third place finish in SLC standings. Keane returned to action in the UTA clash which saw ASU fall to three field goals by Skip Butler. Keane and LaGrone shuffled at the quarterback position and moved the team to a near upset. Jumper had another superb performance, catching six passes for 118 yards. A last second field goal attempt by Everett from 46 yards at an angle out of a mud hole failed. Keane had the whole show to himself in his career finale against Trinity, and despite being thrown for 46 yards worth of losses by the Tiger defense, he hit Gankiewicz and Winford for touchdowns and a 13-10 win. Kevin McClelland was called on to punt nine times, and his high kicks averaged 39.8 yards for one of his best showings of the season.

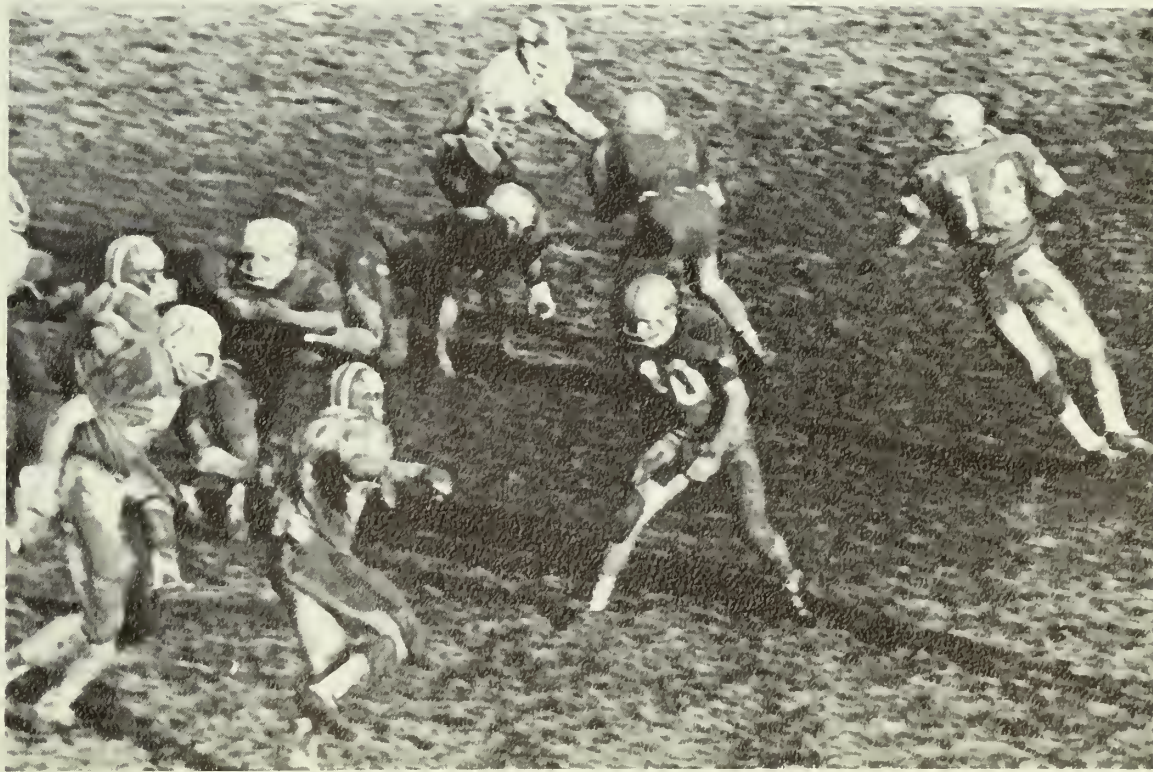

Above, fine pursuit halts this run by UTA's Mike Baylor. (Below left), Everett approaches the ball on a futile 46-yard effort with less than a minute in the game. (Below right), Jumper dives for the ball to set up ASU's first touchdown. It was muddier at midfield where Keane was, (far right below.)

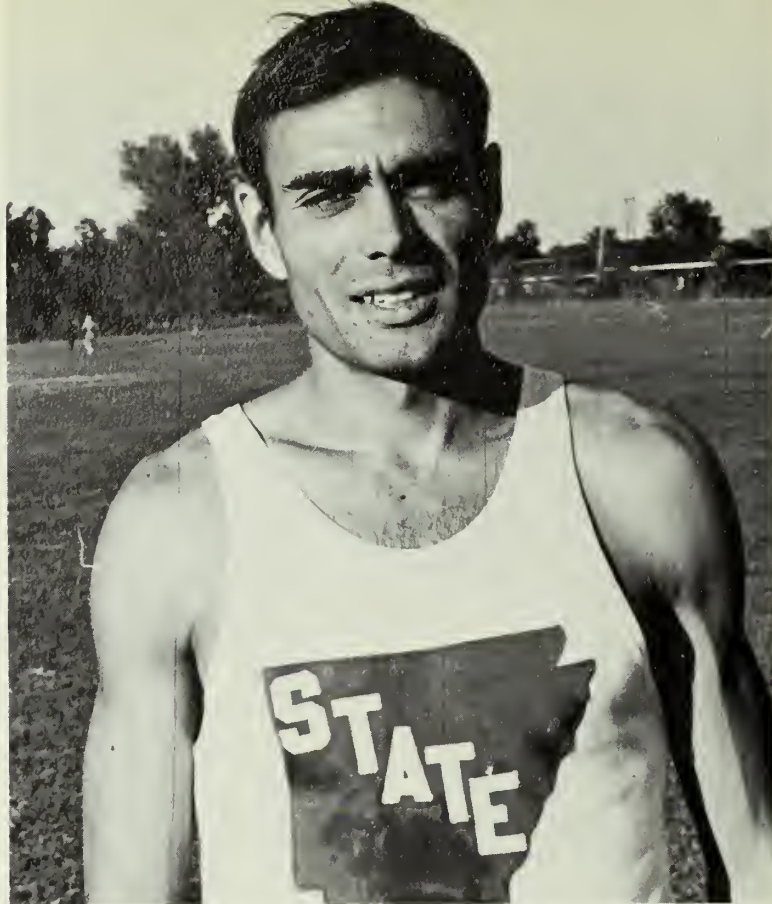

Peyton (84) is crushed by three UTA defenders after taking a short pass. Below, perfect timing stopped this completion.

Harriers Finish Second in SLC, Fourth in Nation

Many cross country records fell as Bob Giersberg, ASU's top distance runner, broke his own records for the four-mile run and the three mile Craighills course. He improved the Union University and Mississippi course records also.

The Harriers won their first three meets, but were cooled down at the Union University Invitational, losing by one point, and after downing Mississippi State, the Indians placed second in the Southland Conference meet and fourth in the NCAA championship.

A sick Giersberg fell to 34th place in the NCAA meet, but junior Virgle Ayers carried the load by placing 12th to lead the team to its fourth place national ranking.

BASKETBALL

Slow Season Finishes Fast

Arkansas State University's basketball Indians finished strong to save what had been one of the most disappointing seasons in the school's history. Nothing went right in the early season games as the Tribe found itself with an 0-10 record. The group left its patterned offense late in the season and made a valiant attempt to gain part of the Southland Conference crown, and they almost did it. The switch to the fast break type game not only revitalized the team, but it also regained much of the crowd support that had been missing. Personnel changes were many throughout the season as some old faces disappeared to be replaced by new ones. The year was especially trying for coach Marvin Speight, who had had four winning teams in as many years at ASU, and for seniors Mike Burk, Dave Renn, Gary Crane and Harold Persfull, who had played on championship ball clubs in the past.

Mike Burk finished sixth on the ASU all-time scorers list with a career total of 1,111 points. He gained second team All-SLC honors as he led the Indians' season and conference scoring with 16.4 and 17.3 norms. Burk was honored at the end of the year as the recipient of the fourth Jerry Rook Award, presented by the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity to the team's outstanding player.

Ronnie Brown hit for an 11.6 scoring average and led the Indians with an .882 free throw percentage in the eight league clashes to gain honorable mention honors.

Senior Gary Crane provided much of the outside support in ASU's finish to gain honorable mention. He also has All-SLC potential in football as a defensive end.

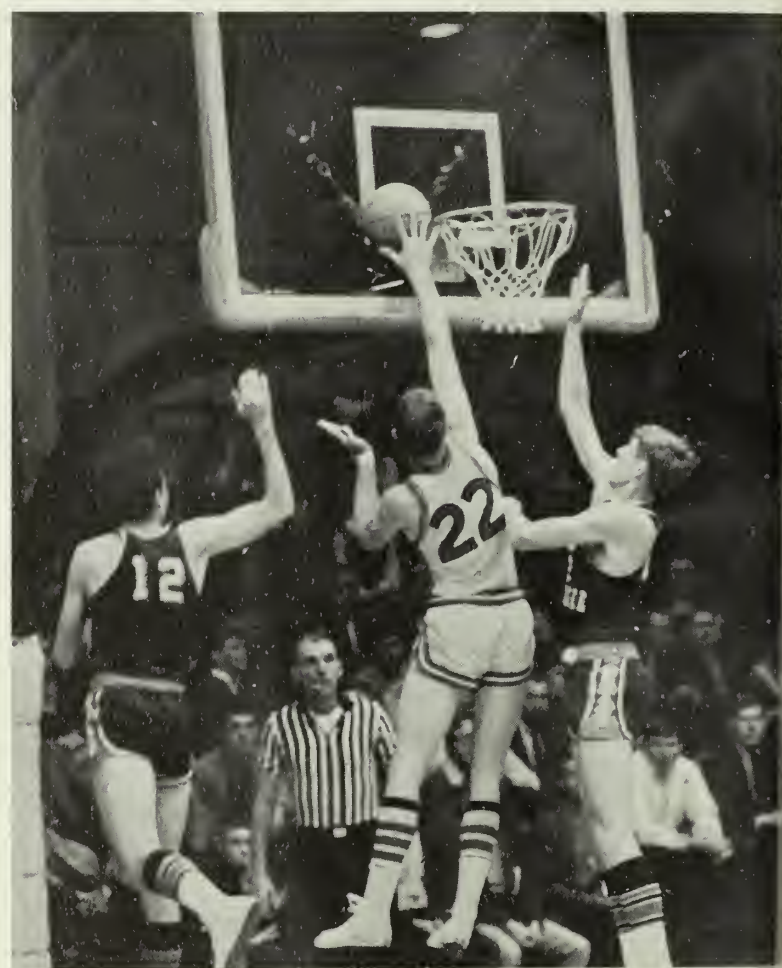

Burk, Renn, Brown, Crane Gain All-SLC

Dave Renn found the fast break to his liking in the final contests and he hit from both inside and outside as he gained All-SLC second team honors. Renn finished with a 16.3 average in SLC clashes and a 13.4 norm for the season. His fall-away jump shot delighted many crowds.

Nothing Goes Right, Indians Quickly 0-7

Mike Burk tries in vain to stop an outside shot at New Mexico State as Dave Renn and Milton Sullivan move into rebound position. In the center, Harold Persfull gets loose for an easy basket against East Tennessee. On the right, the ASU cheerleaders try, to no avail, to instill some spirit in an early season crowd, but the Indian supporters found little to cheer about.

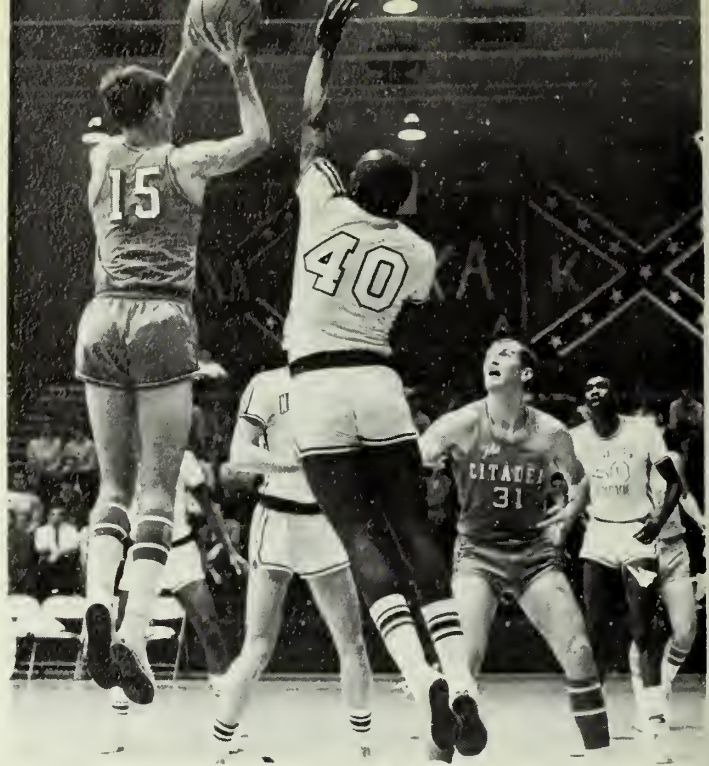

Milton Sullivan, left, finds it almost impossible to shoot over NMSU's big Sam Lacey. Mike Burk, right, pulls down a rebound against Oral Roberts.

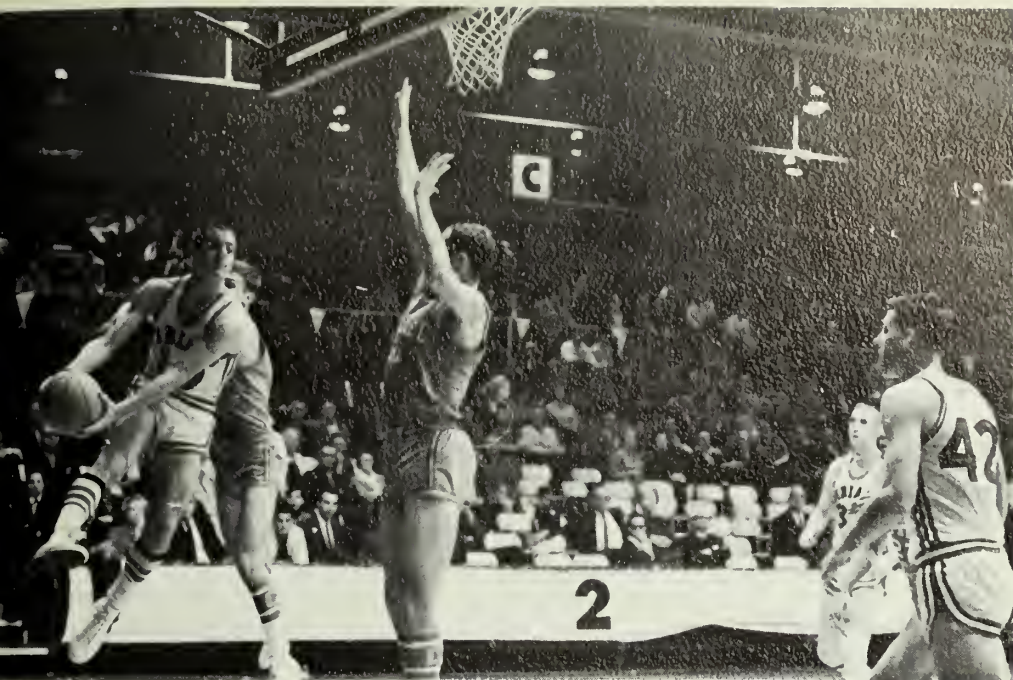

Troubles galore hit the Indians as they quickly found themselves with an 0-7 record before the holiday break. The Tribe opened in Indian Field House and lost a 69-67 squeaker to Oral Roberts University. The Indians then took the road for one of the longest, and most disastrous, trips in school history. ASU faced powerful New Mexico State and took a 96-62 lump, then saved a little face by playing UT El Paso to a 57-48 loss. The Tribe was embarrassed 72-53 at Southwest Missouri, and Milton Sullivan, the promising sophomore, disappeared from the squad, and the school, after the game. After dropping a close one 73-70 to Tennessee Tech in the school's first appearance in Barton Coliseum in Little Rock, the Tribe dropped two more to East Tennessee. At Jonesboro, the Tribe was demolished 105-75, then three days later at Johnson City, Tenn., the Indians were dumped by the Bucs 91-54.

New Mexico State Grabs Tourney Win

Jim Landis, above, was New Mexico State's floor leader. Below, WMU's Gene Ford goes high into the air for a bucket as the sparse crowd watches.

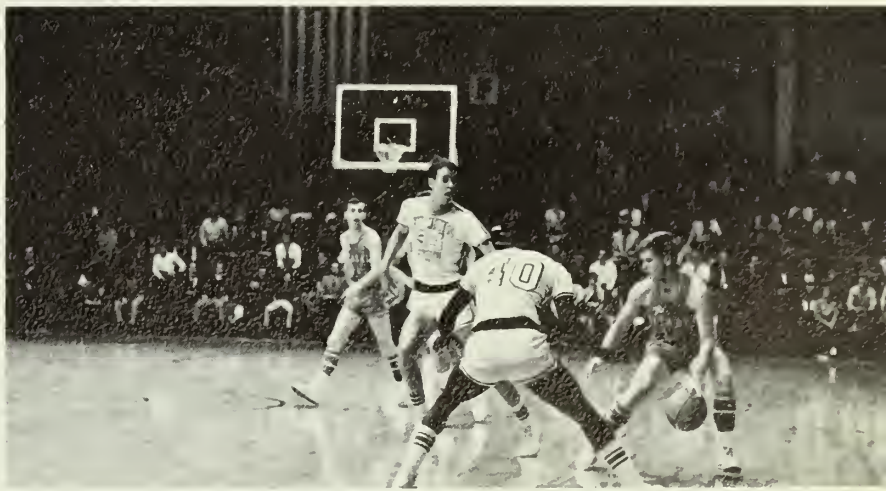

Far left, The Citadel's Tee Hooper fires a shot over NMSU's Ernie Turner. Both were all-tourney selections. Jim Mueller passes underneath to Mike Burk.

The only exciting thing that came out of Arkansas State's fifth, and final, Holiday Basketball Tournament was the flying Aggies of New Mexico State University.

The Aggies took care of Western Michigan 66-59 in the opening round and polished off the championship with a 92-66 blasting of The Citadel the next night.

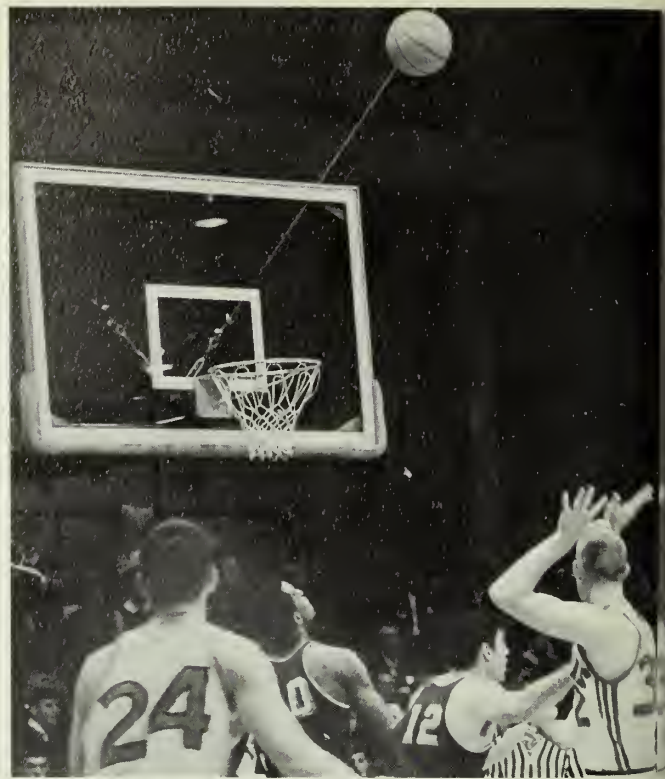

Arkansas State's impotent Indians kept their losing streak alive, dropping a 79-71 decision to The Citadel for their eighth straight loss in the first round and falling 84-73 to Western Michigan the final night to lose the consolation round.

Western Michigan's big Reggie Lacefield (35) was an all-star pick. NMSU's Robert Evans put on defensive pressure (left) and hit from everywhere to be named the tournament's MVP. Above, the Aggie press in action.

Win at UTA Halts Loss Skein at Ten

A familiar sight at Indian basketball games was Dave Renn's fall-away jump shot. In the center, Ronnie Brown throws in two against Southwest Missouri. At right, Harold Persfull tries to pass inside.

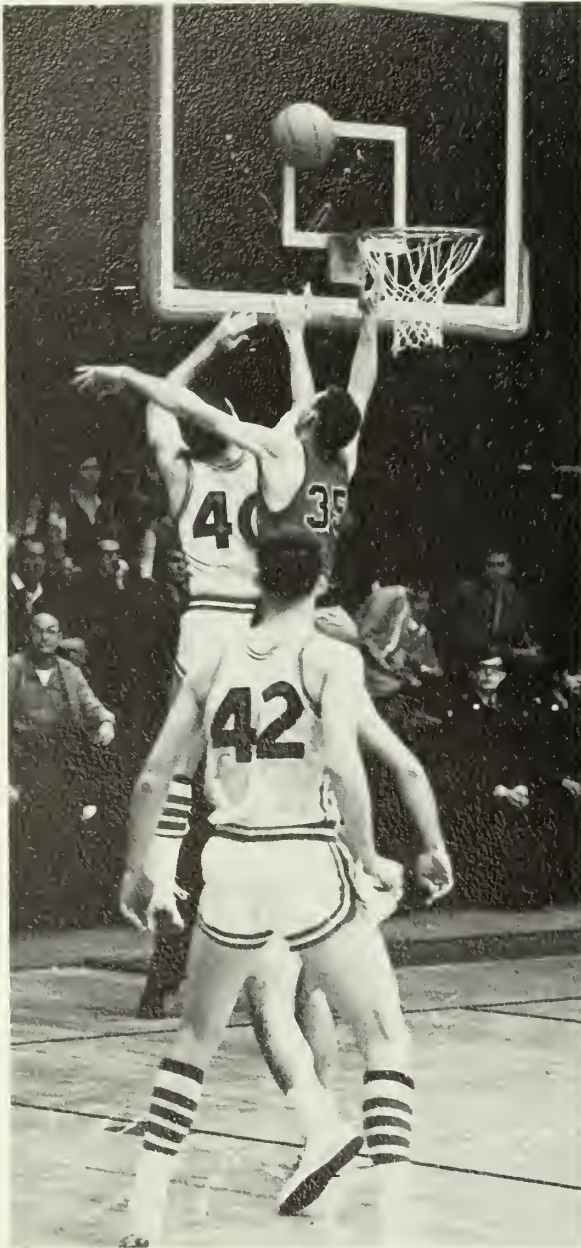

ASU showed signs of life as it pushed nationally ranked Southwest Missouri into overtime before falling 71-66. The loss was a record 10th in a row for the Indians. ASU turned around and set a Southland Conference record by beating Arlington State 83-77 for its first win of the season and 10th straight SLC victory. Ronnie Brown had 22 points in that contest as he hit 10 of 11 from the field. The elation of the victory didn't last long, though, as the Tribe was walloped by Lamar Tech at Beaumont 92-64. Another road game turned sour as ASU fell to old rival Southeast Missouri 80-71. New faces entered the lineup in that game as freshmen Phil Young and Alton Barnes moved up from the junior team. Jim Mueller, a crowd pleaser at guard, left the squad in good standing to concentrate on baseball.

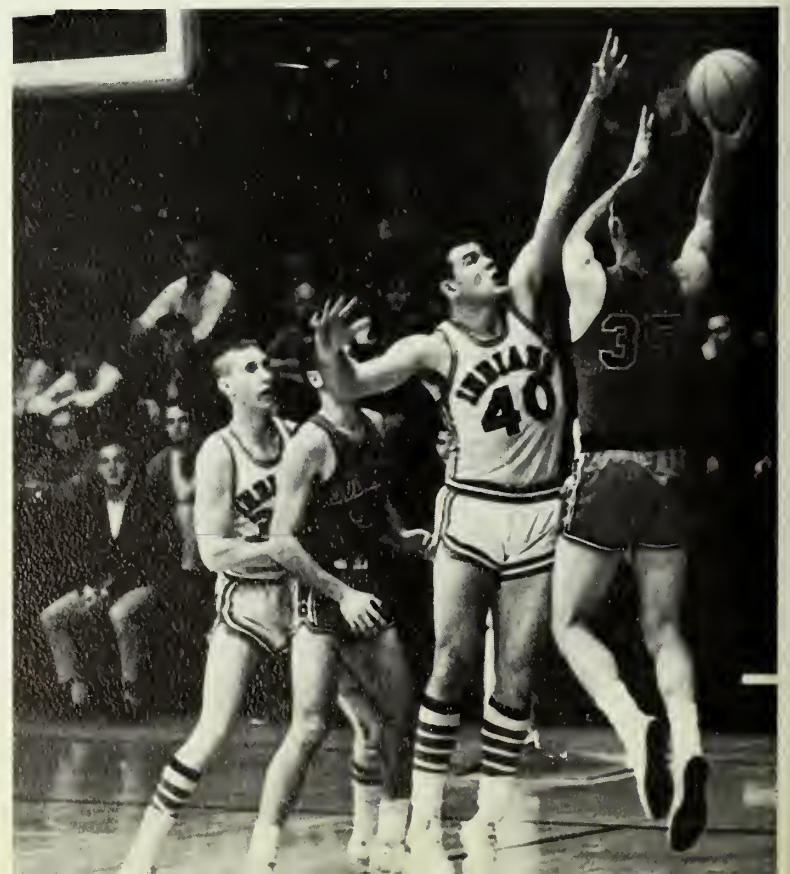

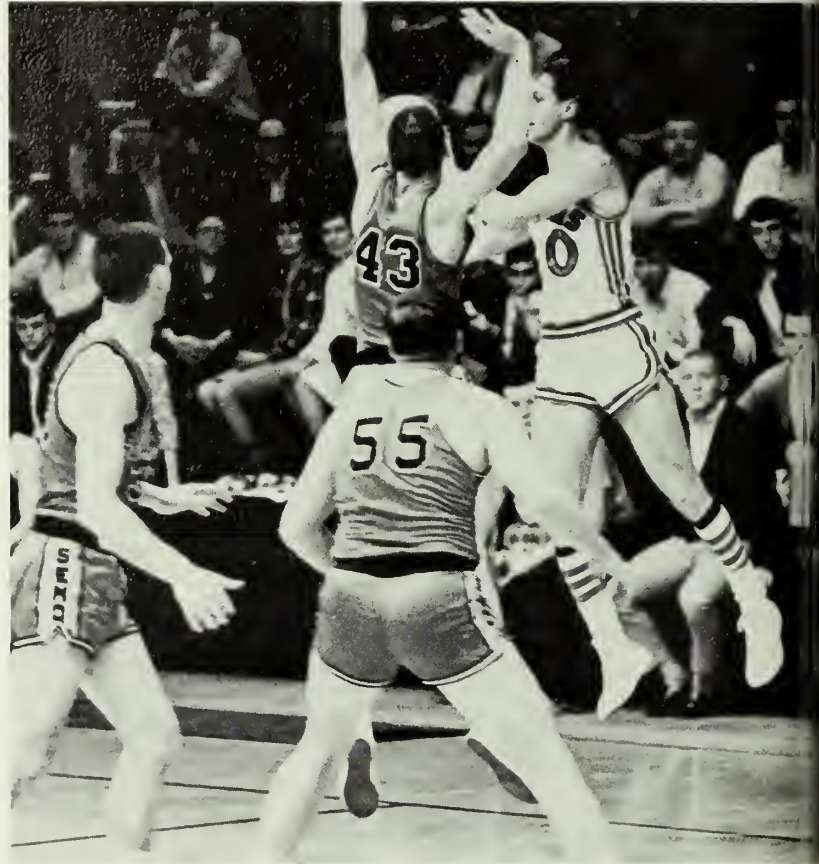

Body behind the backboard, Persfull tries a shot against the Bears. Gary Crane, left, moved from the football field to the basketball court, and he played some fine games in both sports.

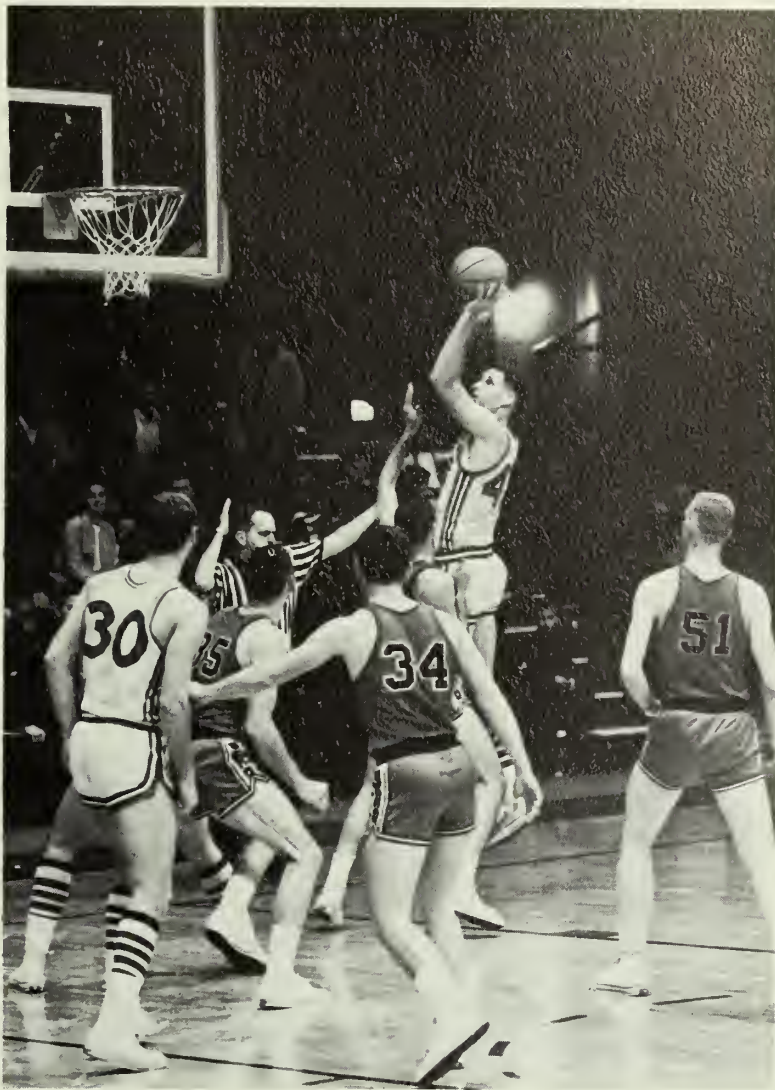

Dave Velander leaves his feet to get off an inbounds pass against SEMO's press. At right, Mike Burk goes high above his defender for two points.

First Home Win Comes Over SEMO

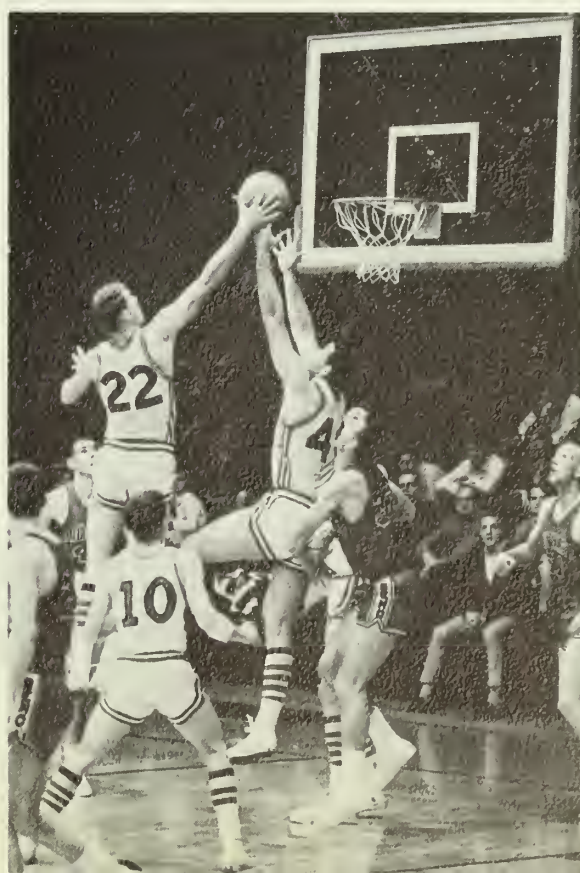

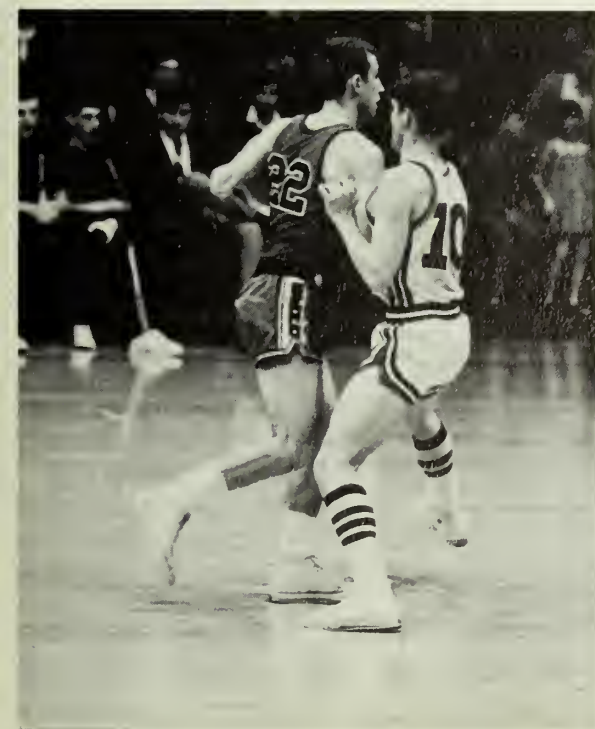

Dallas Thornton and George Tinsley combined for 52 points to lead the nationally ranked Kentucky Wesleyan Panthers to a 100-75 win over the astonished Indians in Owensboro, Kentucky. Thornton hit for 28 and Tinsley threw in 24 while the Tribe was led by Mike Burk's 15 and Gary Crane's 14.

Although the University of Tennessee Martin Branch hit on six more field goals than the Redmen, the Tribe had 21 more points from the charity stripe as ASU won its second game of the year on the road 67-58. Harold Persfull was the leading Indian scorer as the 6-4 senior threw in 14. Burk had 13.

After suffering an 80-71 loss in Cape Girardeau, Mo., the Indians came back to down SEMO on the Tribe's hardwood 82-81. The Osage hit on 56.9 per cent from the floor and were led by Gary Crane's 23.

A-State lost its third conference scrap in four tries when Trinity's Tigers humbled the Redmen 94-63 in Texas.

Larry Jeffries led all scorers with 31 points.

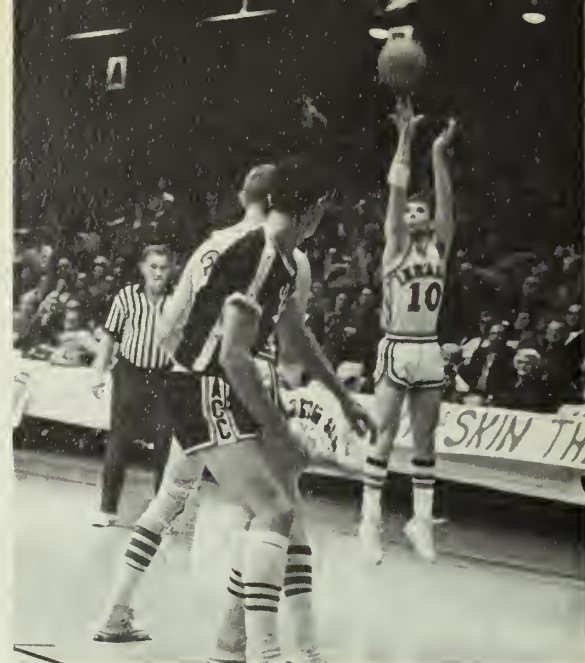

Phil Young did a top job while stopping SEMO's Charley Bertrand. Harold Persfull outreaches teammate Gary Crane for a rebound.

Fast Break Pushes Tribe Over Century

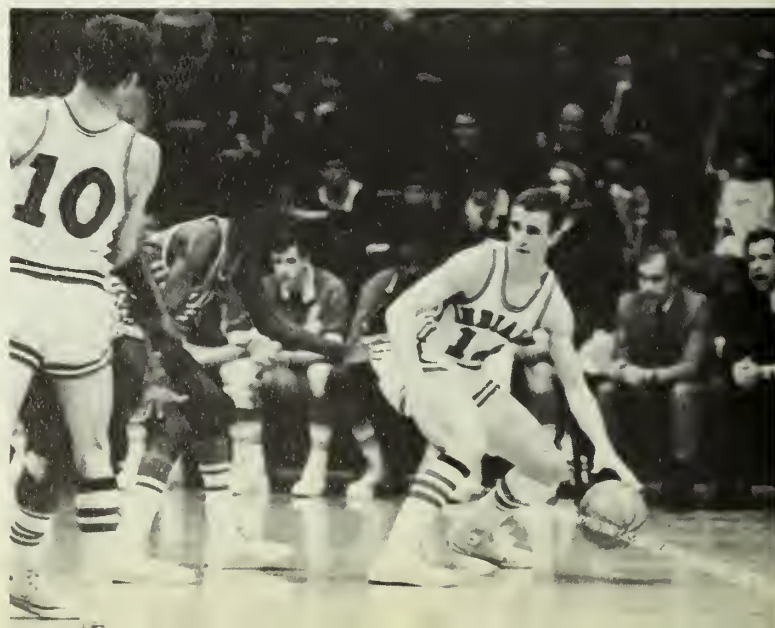

Arkansas State dumped the Rebels from the University of Texas at Arlington 73-65 in Jonesboro giving the Tribe its second conference win and a sweep of the pair of games with the Texas school. Ron Brown took scoring honors for the Indians, throwing in 16 points in a relief role.

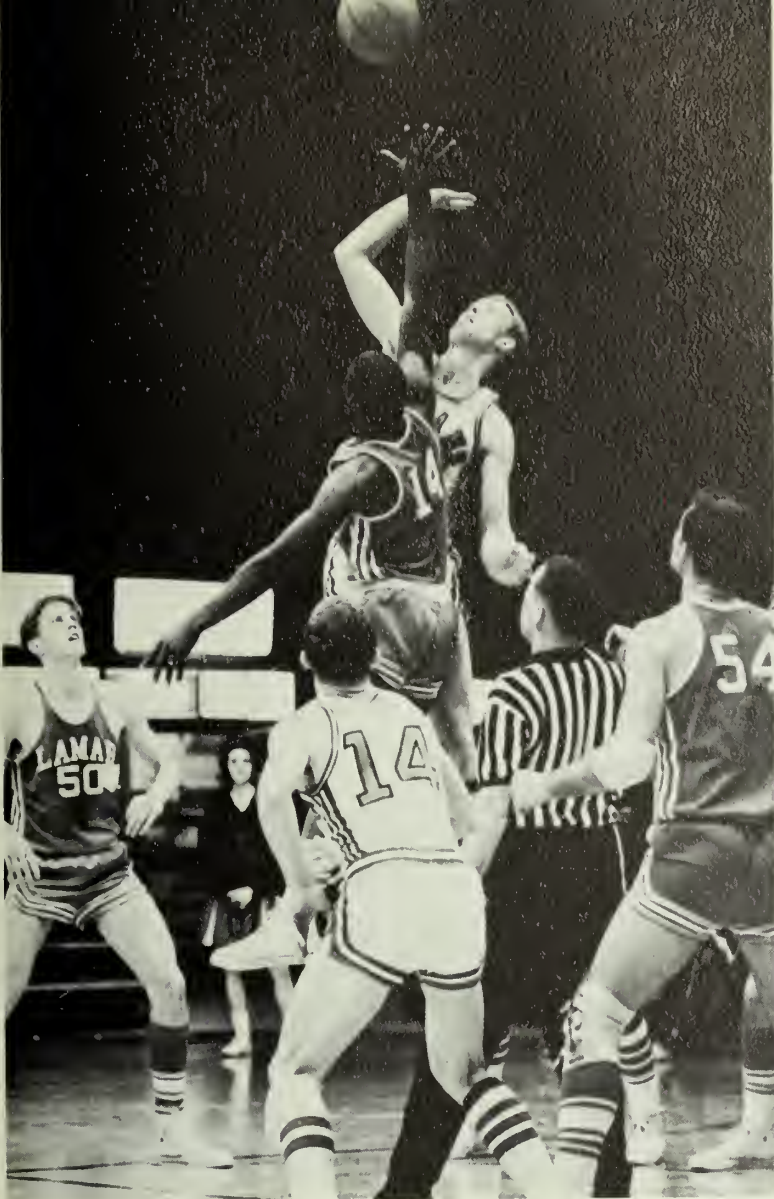

Although A-State fell to the Abilene Christian Wildcats by a score of 85-77, the final ten minutes of the contest proved productive as the Osage produced a fast-break offense not previously seen. Dave Renn finished the night with 19 points to take the scoring honors. Brown was on the end of enough fast breaks to produce 16.

With the new found offense and a blistering 57.7 per cent from the floor, the Tribe produced its highest scoring night of the season running the Cardinals of Lamar Tech out of the gym 106-83. Gary Crane had 23 and Mike Burk 21 to pace the Redmen. Dave Renn added 20.

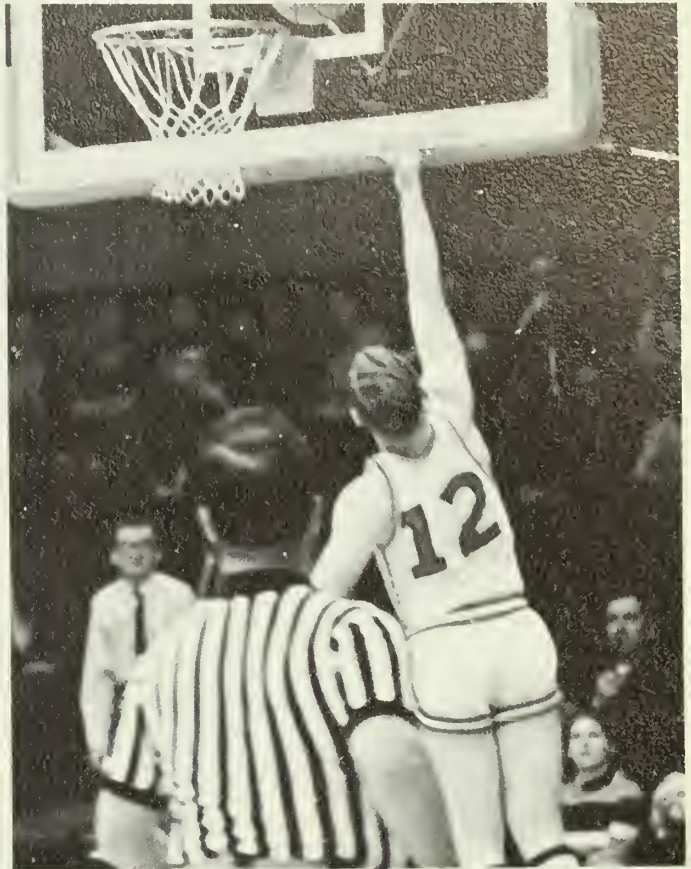

Dave Velandar goes up for a quick shot against the ACC Wildcats while Ron Brown (bottom) runs the offense in the Lamar Tech contest.

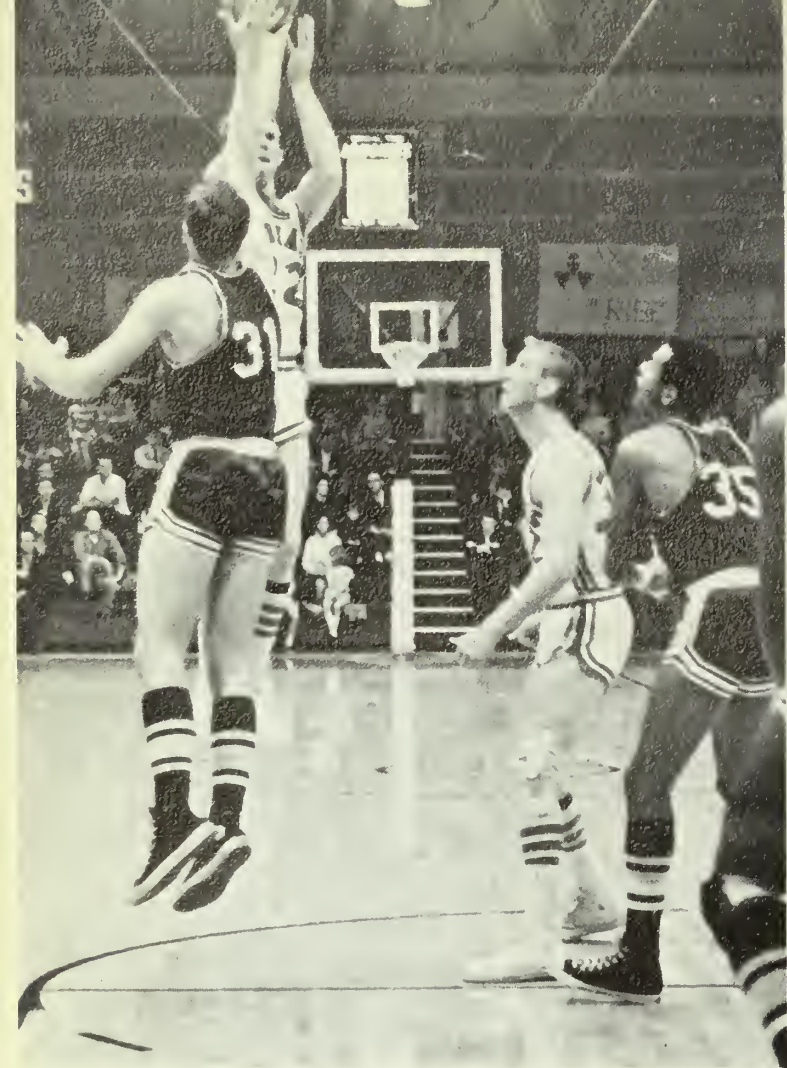

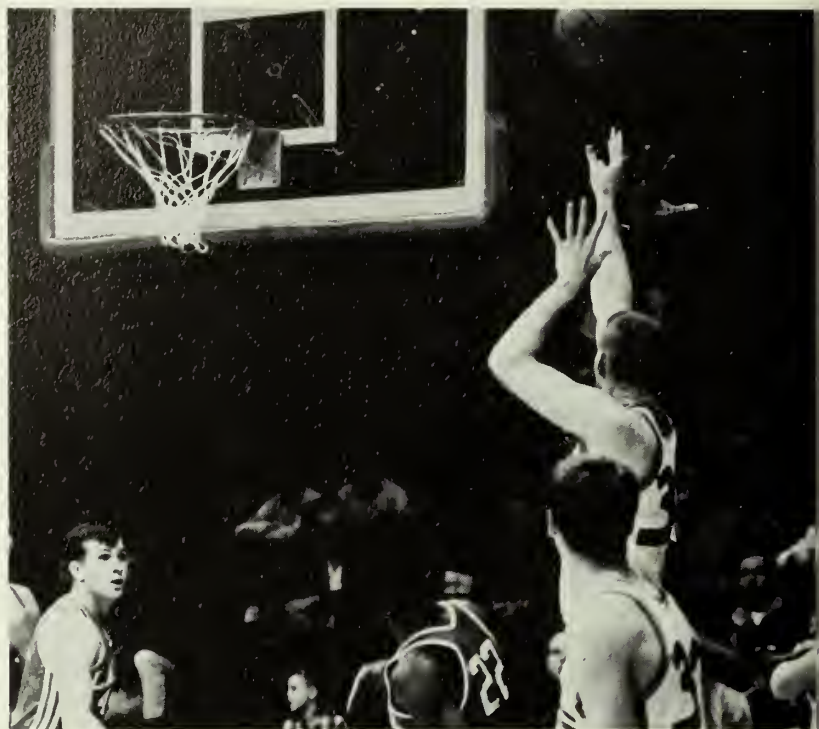

Freshman Phil Young takes a long set-shot in a late attempt to get the Indians back into the Abilene game. A-State's Harold Persfull gets the jump on Lamar and the Indians are off and running.

Eddie Morrison (center) goes in for a lay-up against Lamar Tech. Dave Renn, seen here diving for the ball, played a big part in the Lamar Tech victory.

Harold Persfull and Dave Renn showed their versatility in the year ending push as they hit the bucket from both inside and outside.

Trinity's Tigers were completely stunned by the Indians in the home finale. With a member of the opposition on the floor, Phil Young fires from outside. Gary Crane hit this jumper from the side as Larry Jeffries facially shows his disapproval.

Indians Finish Third in Conference

Arkansas State, using its rejuvenated offense, put a scare into the second-ranked Kentucky Wesleyan Panthers before falling 73-62 in Indian Field House. Led by Mike Burk's 20 points and Dave Renn's 15, the Tribe was able to stay close until the final few minutes when the Panthers' Dallas Thornton led the final victory spurt.

Revenging a humiliating defeat suffered in Texas, ASU put six men in double figures as it shot a devastating 58.5 per cent from the floor and rolled past the Tigers of Trinity University 101-91.

Dave Renn led the assault as the 6-5 senior threw in 24 points, followed by Harold Persfull with 20 and Mike Burk with 15.

With a chance to tie for the Southland Conference championship, State traveled to Abilene, Texas to meet the league leading Wildcats, but John Ray Godfrey was too much and the Tribe came away with a 96-93 overtime loss and third place in the SLC. Godfrey, ACC's All-American hopeful, led all scorers as he connected on 17 of 24 from the field and 7-12 from the line for 41 points. Dave Renn closed out his ASU career with his best performance ever, as he connected for 33 points. Mike Burk finished with 23 which gave him 1,111 career points and the No. 6 spot on the all-time scoring charts.

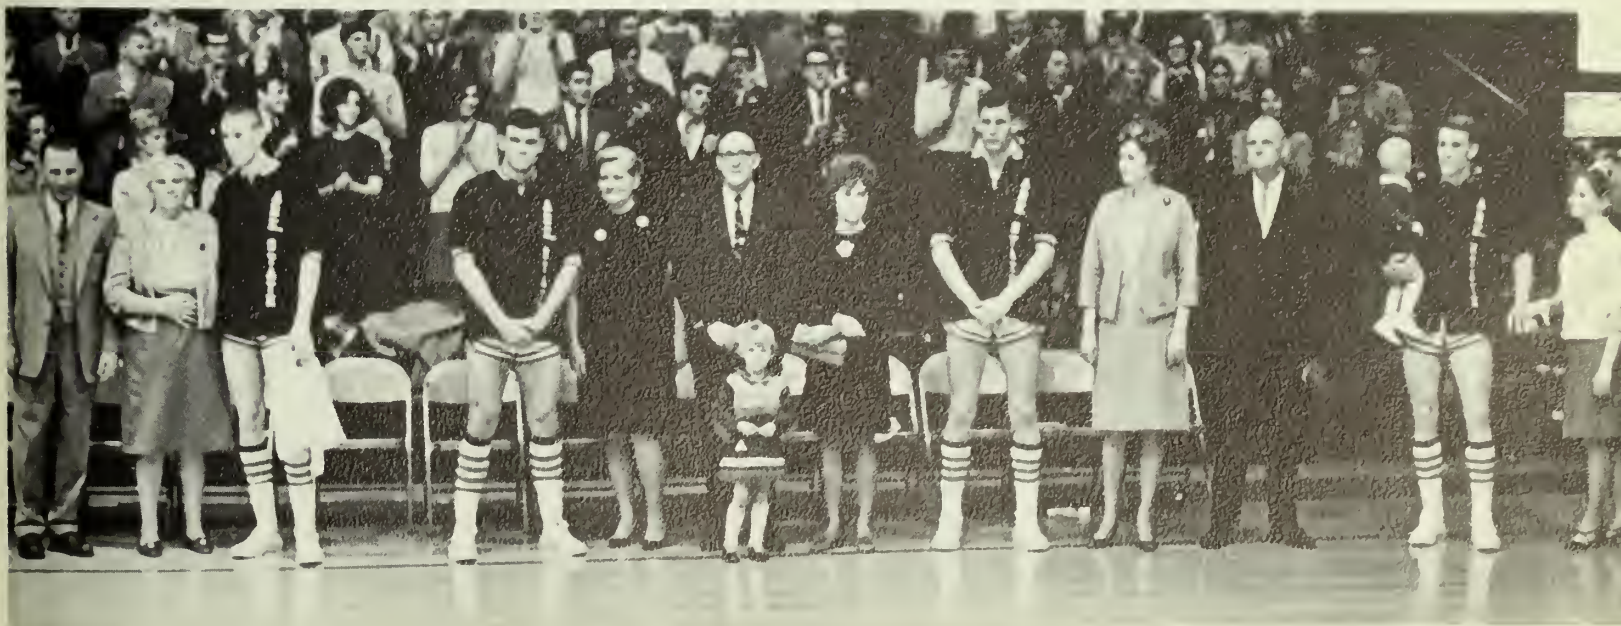

Dave Velandar goes over Kentucky Wesleyan's Thornton for a basket.

Jubilation broke out on the court after the Trinity win.

Seniors Dave Renn, Gary Crane, Mike Burk and Harold Persfull and their families were honored in their final home game.

Intramurals

Intramural pool brought coeds into the usual all-male swelling of the ASU pool room. Below, the starters were many, but the finishers were few in cross country.

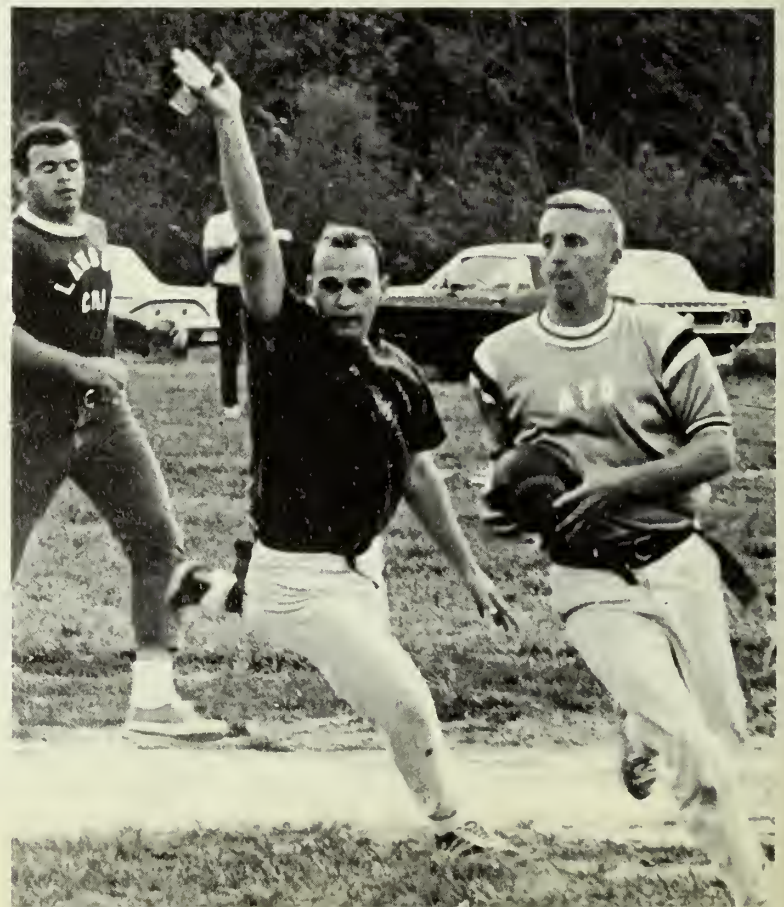

Arkansas State's intramural program attempts to offer something to any interested student, male or female, Greek or independent. In the men's division, the PEM Club swept to championships in almost every sport, while several groups fought for the Greek Sweepstakes award. The structure of the women's program was not greatly altered as all coeds competed in one division.

Bryan Schisler, top left, advised the intramural program this year, and student directors were Ron Wood and Gary Dever.

Lambda Chi Alpha, top, won its third straight Greek football crown after its roughest fight ever. The championship was decided in a four down playoff with Sigma Pi. The PEM Club, center, had a little easier time capturing the independent title.

LXA Takes Third Title; PEM Independent Champs

Intramural football was rougher than ever. Numerous injuries in the seemingly safe "flag-tag" competition brought cries from those who want to see the sport banned.

Basketball Tops Women's Action

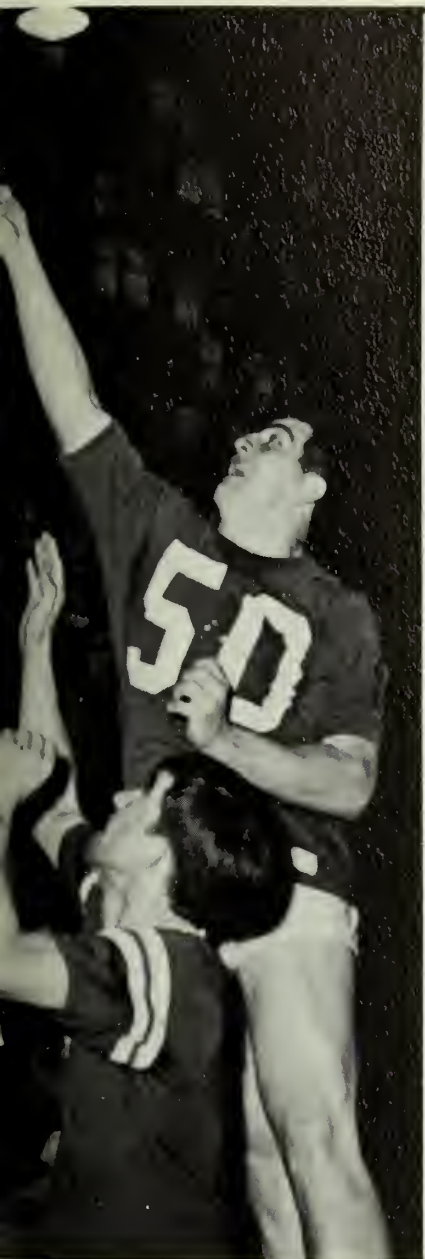

Basketball is one of the top women's intramural sports, and coeds who had high school experience in the sport use their abilities to make it exciting for both participant and spectator.

Across the top, everyone, including faculty team members, got in on the rebounding action. Below, a runner is a little late in reaching home plate.

Volleyball games aren't won by simply batting the ball back and forth across the net. The game requires some skill and a lot of teamwork.

The Arkansas weather wouldn't cooperate, so the baseball team had its pre-season team shot taken in Mississippi.

Spring Sports Preview

ASU's distance corps includes Bob Giersberg, Barry Garlow, Tony Edwards, Kelly Parish, Danny Craig and Virgle Ayers.

The baseball team leaves the field in jubilation after a victory over a powerful Mississippi State team, one of the first of many team wins.

Indian pole vaulters are Danny Bell, Robert Andrews and Bill Bell.

Track and Baseball Bring Out Crowds

Handling the sprints and relays are Elmer Catlin, Bill Caputo, Randy Erwin, Terry Pagni and Rudy Rogers.

This year's track team promises to be the most exciting ever. Coach John Rose has changed his major emphasis to the running events, and the Indians' home schedule will give track fans several chances to see some of the nation's top track men.

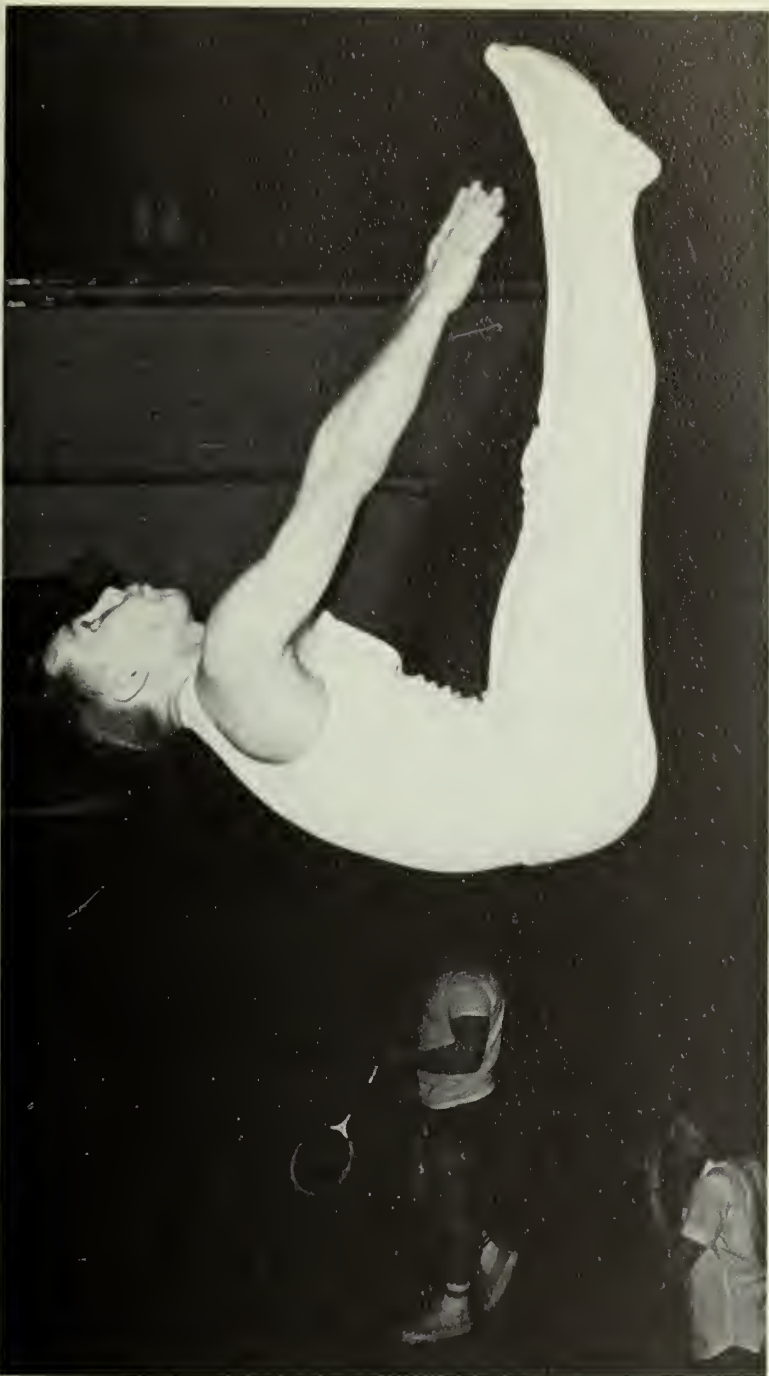

Javelin throwers are Stan Vaughn, Butch Brogdon and Ken Bowling, who also throws the discus.

Gymnastics was added as a coeducational sport this year, and plans are to compete with the team next year. Team members are, front row, Debby Threet, Lynn Valenteen and Sandy Reynolds; second row, Darrell Jackson, Phillip Wright, Dane Hatley and Charles O'Brian; third row, Dick Bolton, Kay Black, Barbara Coleman, Donna Wells, Patti Warr, Bob Feldwich and Coach Everett Bolton.

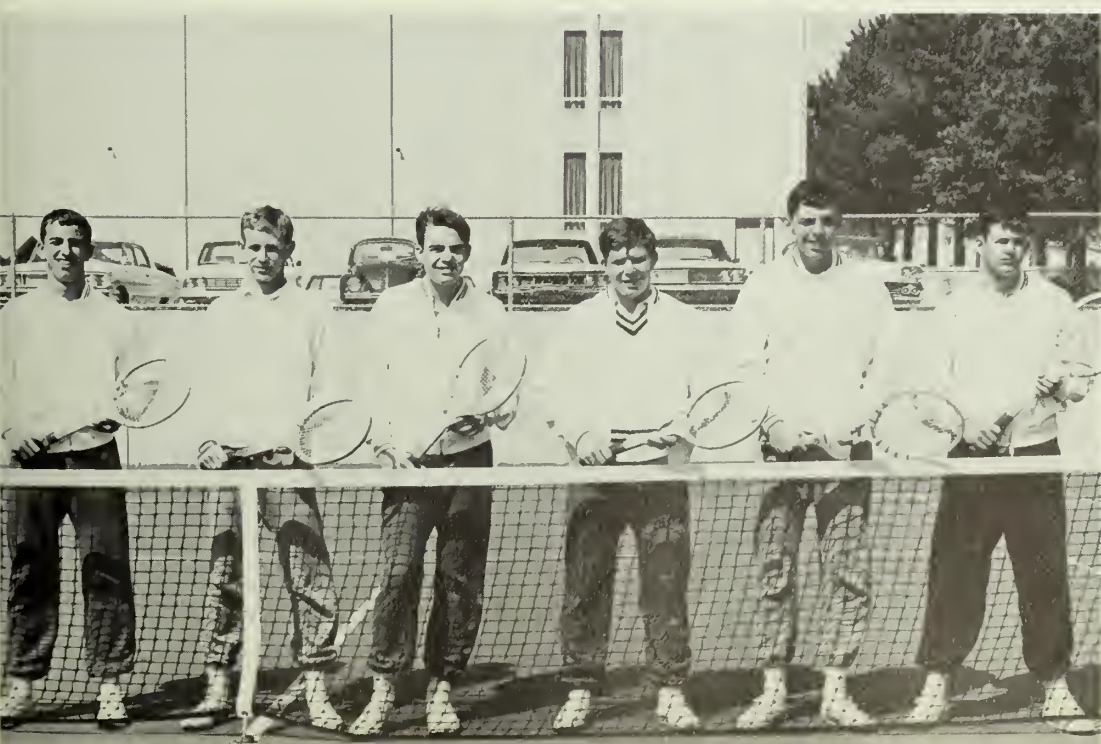

Golf team members are Mike Stropp, Mike Mitchell, Cecil Treece, Coach John Rauth, James Mills, Jim Heiber, Norman Keller, Kenny Southern, and, at the tee, Marlin Shipman

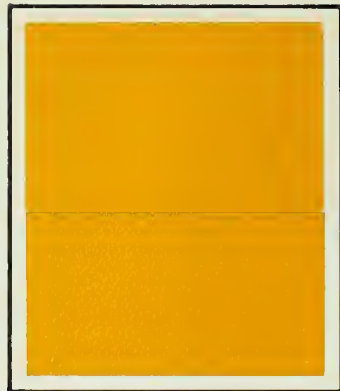

At left, a gymnastics team member soars high in the air, while below, tennis team ace Richard Brooks returns a serve in an early match.

Tennis team members are Brett Baker, Jack Carson, Bob Phillips, Joel Campbell, Tim Walters and Richard Brooks.

University

Versatile is Word for Dr. Reng

Versatility best describes the man most responsible for the progress made at A-State in the past 17 years. Besides being a respected educator, Dr. Carl R. Reng, President of Arkansas State University, finds time to be a financial strategist, amateur magician and family man. Dr. Reng came to ASU in 1951; since then the school has grown from 1,200 to 6,400 students. A native of Sioux Rapids, Iowa, Dr. Reng obtained his B.A. from Buena Vista, his masters from Drake and his Ed.D. degree at the University of Missouri and also received an LL.D. degree from his alma mater. He and his wife have two daughters.

Dr. Eugene Smith (above) aids Dr. Reng as his executive assistant. Mrs. Midge N. Holmes (right) is secretary to the President.

Robert Moore

Investigating crimes, arguing about traffic tickets, and safeguarding the general welfare are not only jobs for a policeman, but also for ASU's dean of students. Robert Moore, who has held that position since 1954, has often noted that his role in campus affairs is much more than just being "a substitute father for the student body."

A former dean of men and extension director at A-State, Dean Moore received his B.A. in psychology at Mississippi College in 1948, then obtained his masters at the University of Mississippi. He and his wife have two daughters, Doris and Wanda.

Administrators Mastermind Academe

N. D. Hazelbaker

With a resolute grimace, Dr. N. D. Hazelbaker loosened his tie, chomped his pipe, and charged the mass of confused students in an attempt to add order to the chaos of spring registration. As Vice-President in charge of instruction, Dr. Hazelbaker has long been known as an aggressive supervisor of the academic scene.

Before coming to Arkansas State in 1953, he served as superintendent of several schools in Missouri. He received a B.S. in mathematics from Northeastern Oklahoma State, a masters in education from the University of Missouri, and his doctorate from the University of Arkansas. He and his wife, Mildred, have a son, Kim, who is a sophomore at ASU.

L. Cameron

Trying to keep Arkansas State's financial affairs out of the red is the weighty responsibility of L. Cameron, Vice-President in charge of business and purchasing since 1951.

A 1936 graduate of Arkansas State, he obtained his masters at the University of Arkansas. He taught school and served as county supervisor and examiner in his native Lawrence County before taking over his present job. He and his wife, Inez, have three children, Kay, Robert, and Suzi.

Ray Hall

Traveling and talking are the key tasks for Ray Hall, director of field services at Arkansas State. An active public relations program aimed at attracting top students to ASU is one of his main responsibilities, in addition to a placement service to help graduates find jobs suited for their educational background.

Having served at A-State since 1951, he assumed his present position in 1956. He obtained a B.S.E. from Arkansas State Teachers College and his masters from the University of Arkansas. He and his wife, Kathleen, have three sons, George, Ray Jr., and John.

Arkansas State's Board of Trustees

Arkansas State University got its first board of trustee member from outside the Northeast Arkansas area in February when W. P. Gulley Jr. of Little Rock was appointed to the post by Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller. He succeeded Van Smith of Tuckerman.

Gulley, Rockefeller's second appointee, is well respected as a civic leader, having served as president of the Little Rock Chamber of Commerce. His appointment should help project the school's state-wide image.

The board of trustees is composed of five members, one of which is appointed each year by the governor and confirmed by the state senate. Each member serves a five-year term.

College Of Agriculture

Scientific advances have greatly changed agriculture, and the College of Agriculture at Arkansas State, keeping abreast with these changes, has developed into the state's largest undergraduate agriculture college. ASU is located in one of the most fertile and diversified farming areas in Arkansas, which provides a good location for practical training. The department has a 13-member faculty, ten of whom have doctorate degrees. These instructors, the location, and new methods provide students in the college with an ideal environment for studies in agricultural business and economics, agricultural engineering, agricultural education, agronomy, animal husbandry, horticulture and general agriculture. Dr. O. P. Nail is dean of the College of Agriculture.

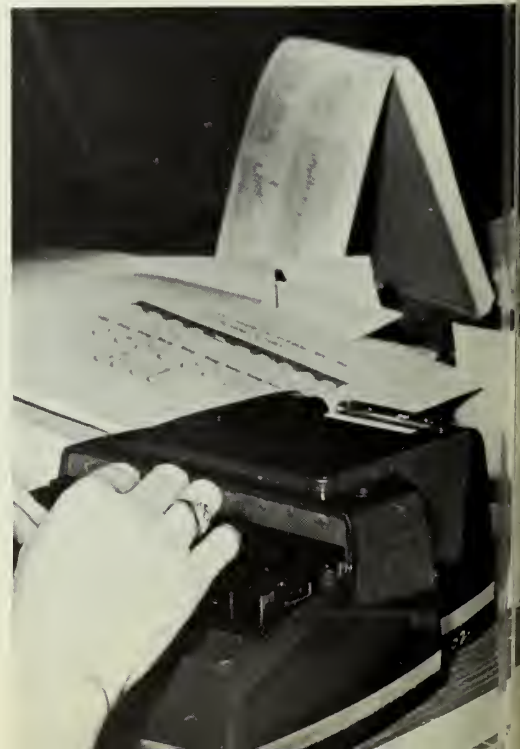

Agriculture faculty—(seated) James Davenport, A. J. Langlois, J. A. Hayles, Amos B. Rougeau, L. N. Hochstetler, (standing) A. W. Tennille, J. D. Wilkins, W. A. North, J. H. Keene, Rodney O. Hexem, A. L. Mink, and Herman F. Williams.

Dr. O. P. Nail is dean of the College of Agriculture.

College of Business

This year's graduates from the College of Business are trained to become the thinkers, organizers, and executives whose skills will be the life of our economy. Each graduate of the college receives a background in accounting, business administration, business education and secretarial science. Headed by Dr. B. C. McGough, the college strives to discover and develop potential that will lead to success in the varied phases of business and government service. Through research, the college contributes both to its own growth and the improvement of the community. Division heads are Shirl D. Strauser, accounting; Dr. Robert Ferralasco, business and secretarial science; and Dr. Roland Mullins, general business and economics.

Dr. B. C. McGough is head of the College of Business.

General Business, Economics faculty—(standing) Jerry Crawford, Robert Ralston, Lonnie Talbert, Dr. Roland Mullins, Fred Robinson, Herbert Price Jr., Howard Alsey, (seated) Emelda Williams, Robert Wroten, and George N. Wilson.

Accounting faculty—Joe Wellborn, E. E. Milam, S. D. Strauser, Nancy Haigler, and L. M. Dinsmore.

Business Education, Secretarial Science faculty—(seated) Mary Lou Wood, Virginia Stotts, Brenda Snider, Erma Wood, (standing) Rebecca Collins, Bonnie Valentine, Fay Beth Gray, Dr. R. L. Ferralasco, and William Waddle.

Business students could take a lesson in money-collecting from ASU's intrepid campus policemen. This sly student, however, avoided a fine by carefully displaying his parking sticker on what was left of a bashed bumper.

Dr. Harry F. Hodge is dean of the College of Education.

Education Administration faculty—(front row) Robert B. Kluge, Dr. Vance Sales, chairman, Paul E. Couch, W. L. Smith, (back row) Dr. Joseph C. Taylor, Carol Ham, Dr. A. G. Shannon, and Joseph P. Sweat.

The College of Education is designed to meet the need for qualified teachers at all levels. In order to cover a wide range of interests, as well as professions, a well-rounded program is provided, including guidance and counseling, special education, ministerial training, social work and psychology. The college is divided into five divisions, headed by Dr. Harry F. Hodge. Chairmen of these divisions are Dr. M. Vance Sales, Educational Administration, Secondary Education and Education Foundations; Dr. George Peters, counselor of Education and Psychology; Dr. Ray L. Simpson, Elementary Education and Special Education; Dr. Darrell Black, Physical Education and Recreation; and James Hansard, Library Science.

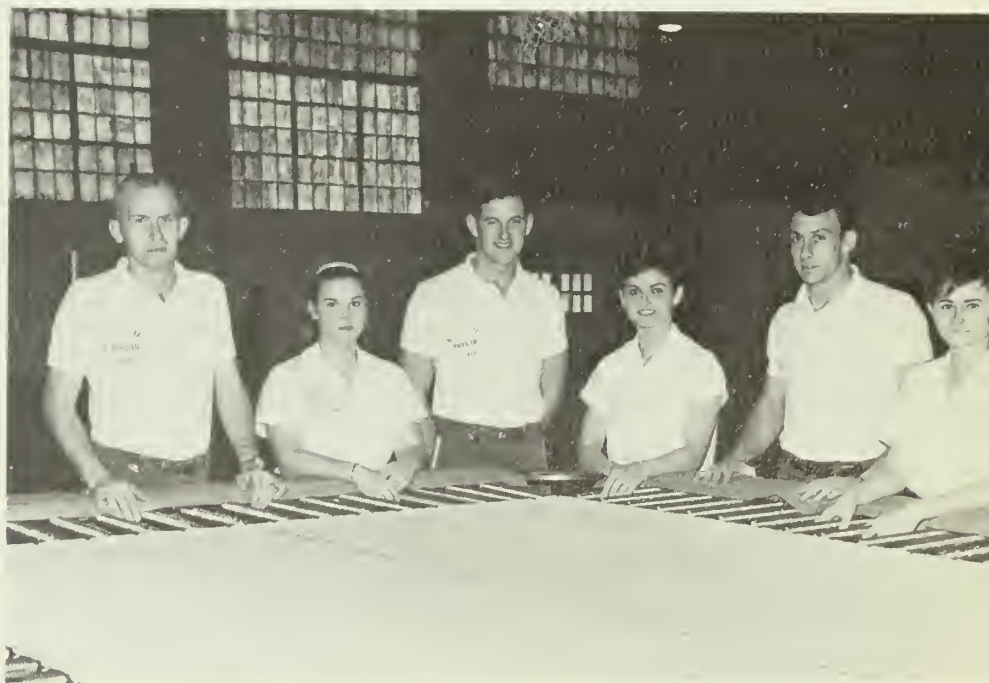

Library Science faculty—James W. Hansard, Joan Gail Nelson, and James F. Anderson.

Elementary, Special Education faculty—(seated)
 Linda Sumpter, Eileen Adams, Eva Lee Graves, Clara
 Cole, Lila Colter, Juanita Hall, Norma Payne, (standing) W. G. Chance,
 Lillian Barton, Nancy Bumpass, Baron D. Conaway, Ralph White, Jack Hogins, Mildred Vance, and Dr.
 Ray L. Simpson, chairman.

Graduate Assistants—Richard Johnson, Vesta McNeely, Tom Semper, Rosalie Barber, Dan Carroll, and Genie Smith.

College Of Fine Arts

Art, music and drama are each an important element of man's cultural environment. At Arkansas State University, education in these areas is the responsibility of the College of Fine Arts. Under the guidance of Dr. Duane H. Haskell, head of the college, students are encouraged to develop a greater appreciation of musical and visual art forms, as well as drama and speech. Each division offers basic and specialized courses. By participating in activities both in and out of the classroom, students are able to develop creative skills.

Division chairmen are Dan Howard, Art; Dr. Dennis H. Rhodes, Speech and Drama; and Donald R. Minx, Music.

The Chamber Theater was a project this year for speech students.

The new gallery sometimes serves as an impromptu study hall.

Dan Howard arranges a scene with which freshman art students become quite familiar.

College Of Liberal Arts

Political Science faculty—Robert Bufkin, Dan Morse, Dr. John Osoinach, Dr. Justine Mann, Clyde Jones, Dr. Edwin Coulter, Aaron McNeece, Judith Bradford, Louise Monaghan, Kay Branson, and James Durland.

Dr. O. P. James is dean of the College of Liberal Arts.

The purpose of the College of Liberal Arts is to put problems into student minds, to ask questions that don't have stock answers. Easy solutions are not a product of the curricula, but growing awareness and critical thinking, hopefully, are. The college offers an exploration of the thought and action of man on diversified levels. And although when a student completes his study in one of the fields of liberal arts, he is not able to conjure up magic formulas to solve the world's difficulties, at least he may be able to categorize the problems correctly.

Headed by Dr. Phillip O. James, the college provides over half the requirements in the basic education courses. Chairmen of the college's divisions are Dr. John Galloway, History; Dr. Alfred E. Leja, English, Philosophy and Language; and Dr. Edwin Coulter, Political Science, Sociology and Geography. Over 50 teachers compose the college's staff.

English, Philosophy, Language faculty—Dr. Alfred Leja, chairman, (front row) Frances Hunter, Wanda Walker, Barbara Pruitt, Linda Varnell, Deanna Aaron, Eleanor Lane, Mary Sloan, Nancy Young, Fina Wuppermann, (second row) Claire Lyons, Stuart Meltzer, John Masterson, George Purvis, Sarah Donna Black, Ellen Robinson, Lucille Braden, Dr. Alfred Zivers, Sammy Gennuso, Robert Sugg, Edward Reilly, (back row) Mike Drouilhet, Marvin Zimmerman, Samuel Crews, T. J. Mattern, Dr. Jim Burleson, Arthur Krida, Jim Miles, and C. D. Culver.

College Of Science

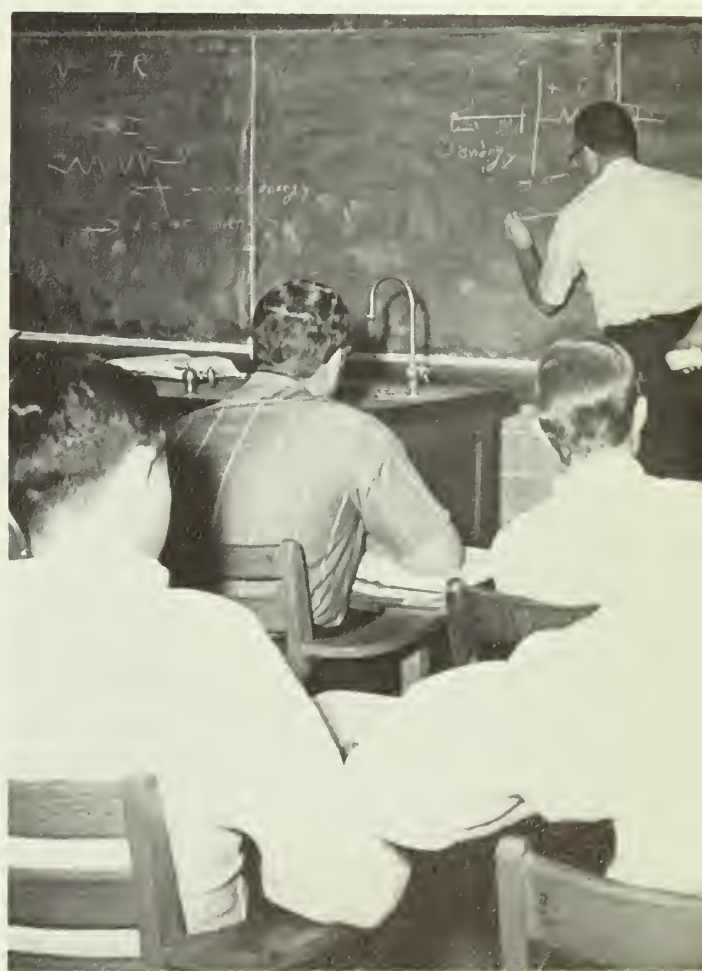

Dr. James Stevenson, dean of the College of Science, surveys the new Laboratory Science center, which cost in excess of $2 million.

To meet an ever-increasing need for qualified personnel in all phases of science, The College of Science is undergoing a period of rapid expansion. This year, an enlarged staff of 44 instructors taught almost 5,000 students in the biological and physical sciences and in math and physics.

Since a high percentage of the science department instructors are specialists, they are recognized as authorities in their respective fields and are better able to prepare a large number of students for professional or graduate schools.

The need for better facilities and more room for instructors and students was met this spring when the new Laboratory Sciences Building was opened and the move from the old one was made. Dr. James Stevenson is dean of the college, and serving under him as division heads are Dr. J. B. Thronberry, Biological Sciences; Dr. Howard Moore, Physical Sciences; and Dr. Edward Anders, Math and Physics.

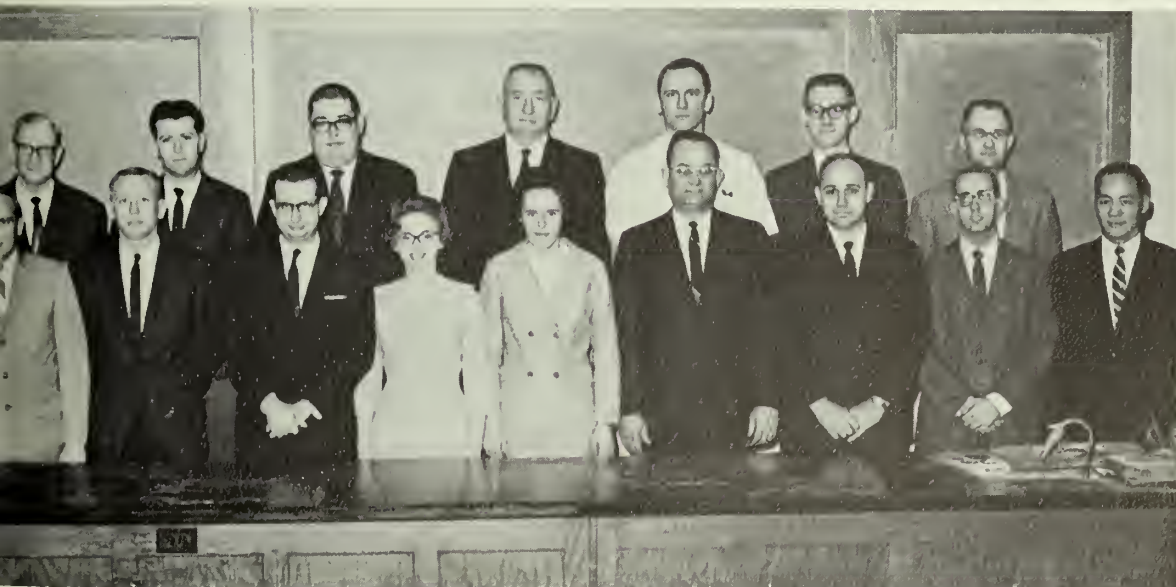

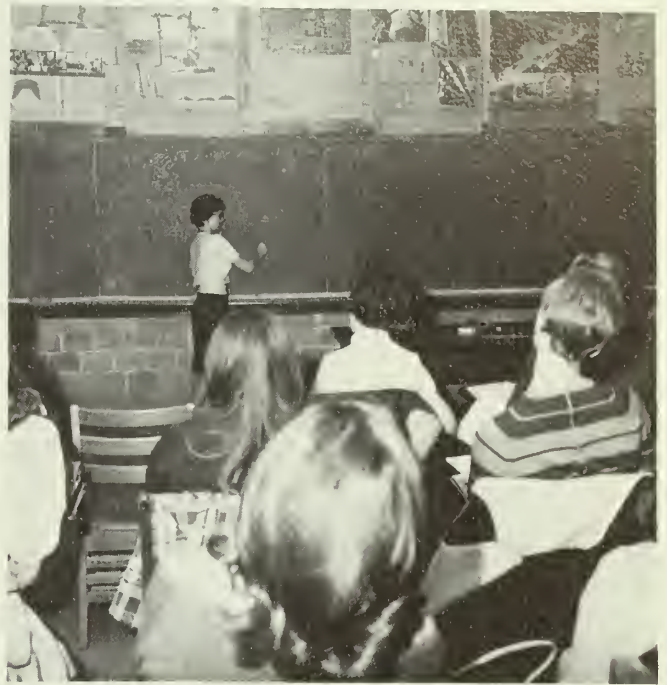

Workmen (left) apply paint to the ceiling of one of the large raised-level classrooms in the new science center. Such rooms will help eliminate crowded conditions like those in the old building (above).

Division of Radio-TV, Journalism and Printing

Modern machinery keeps instruction in the printing classes up-to-date.

Experience is a vital aid to learning for aspiring journalists in the Division of Radio-TV, Journalism and Printing. L. W. "Tex" Plunkett, chairman of the division, places emphasis on knowledge which students gain through on-the-job training. Writing and editing talents are developed by work on the campus newspaper, The Herald, which appears on Friday.

The Printing Department offers its majors practical experience in the techniques of type-setting and other press work on the most modern machinery available.

Scheduling a complete course of TV instruction for the first time this year, the Radio-TV Department is the only such department in the state that offers a bachelor degree. In completely equipped radio control rooms and TV studios, students gain a working knowledge that enables them to go into their first jobs with experience.

Charles Rasberry was one of the first to try out the new television equipment. Luckily, no tubes blew.

Military Science: Here's Where the Boys Get With the Program

The Division of Military Science grew so much during the past year that Colonel Harry Morris and his staff had a task trying to find a place to put everyone. But they managed, as any basic cadet could attest. Freshmen quickly found that besides the campus world of classes, football games and dormitories there was another of shined shoes, polished brass and regulation haircuts. For those sophomores adjusted to the latter world, an advanced ROTC program for training future Army officers was offered. For juniors and seniors already wearing the disks and diamonds of cadet officers, a still larger world of spit, polish and responsibility loomed in the not-too-far-distant future.

Military Science Faculty — (seated) Maj. Charles L. Campbell, Maj. Jerrel E. Hamby, Maj. Lawrence Mills, Maj. Bobby G. Evans, Col. Harry G. Morris, Maj. Guy D. McCoy, Maj. John B. Avera Jr., Maj. Jackie E. Schmidt, Capt. Thomas J. Davis (standing) SSG Bobby J. Brown, SFC Wayne W. March, Capt. Robert W. Mowery, SFC George Barr, Capt. Randall L. Ford, Capt. Franklin L. Matthews, SFC Robert E. Burnett, SFC James H. Greenway, MSG Jimmie N. Griffin, Capt. Herbert L. Lawson, SFC Francis H. Gay.

The stiff captain in the stiff fatigues and glassy boots yelled into the loudspeaker: "What's the spirit of the blade?!"

Two hundred young men in sweaty T-shirts and dusty boots answered in unison: "To kill, sir!"

Thus it was at ROTC Summer Camp, a land of growling, groveling and griping in the vast Oklahoma wilderness of Fort Sill. Cadets learned the fundamentals of surviving in combat, which proved that all the Darwinian theories about natural law apply to man as well as beast.

Arkansas State's cadets fared well, ranking high among the many schools represented. But though such first-hand experience of the rigors of military life was invaluable to future officers, most were quite content to return to the joys of being undisciplined civilians.

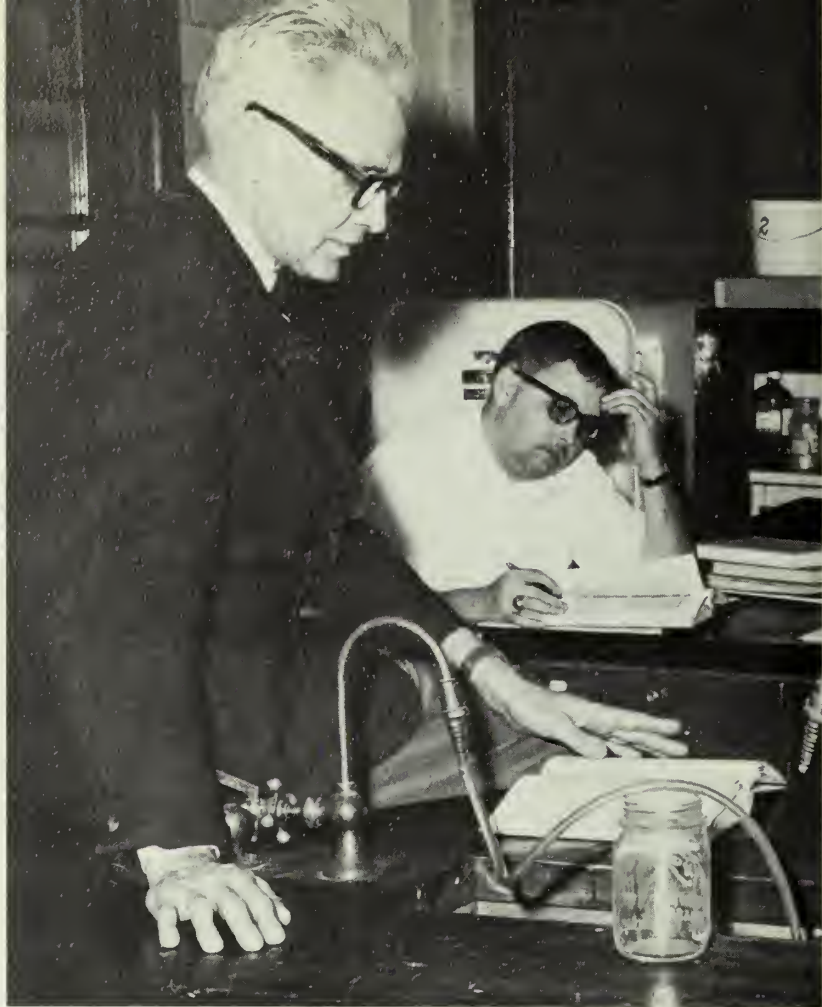

ASU Cadets Make Good Showing at Summer Camp

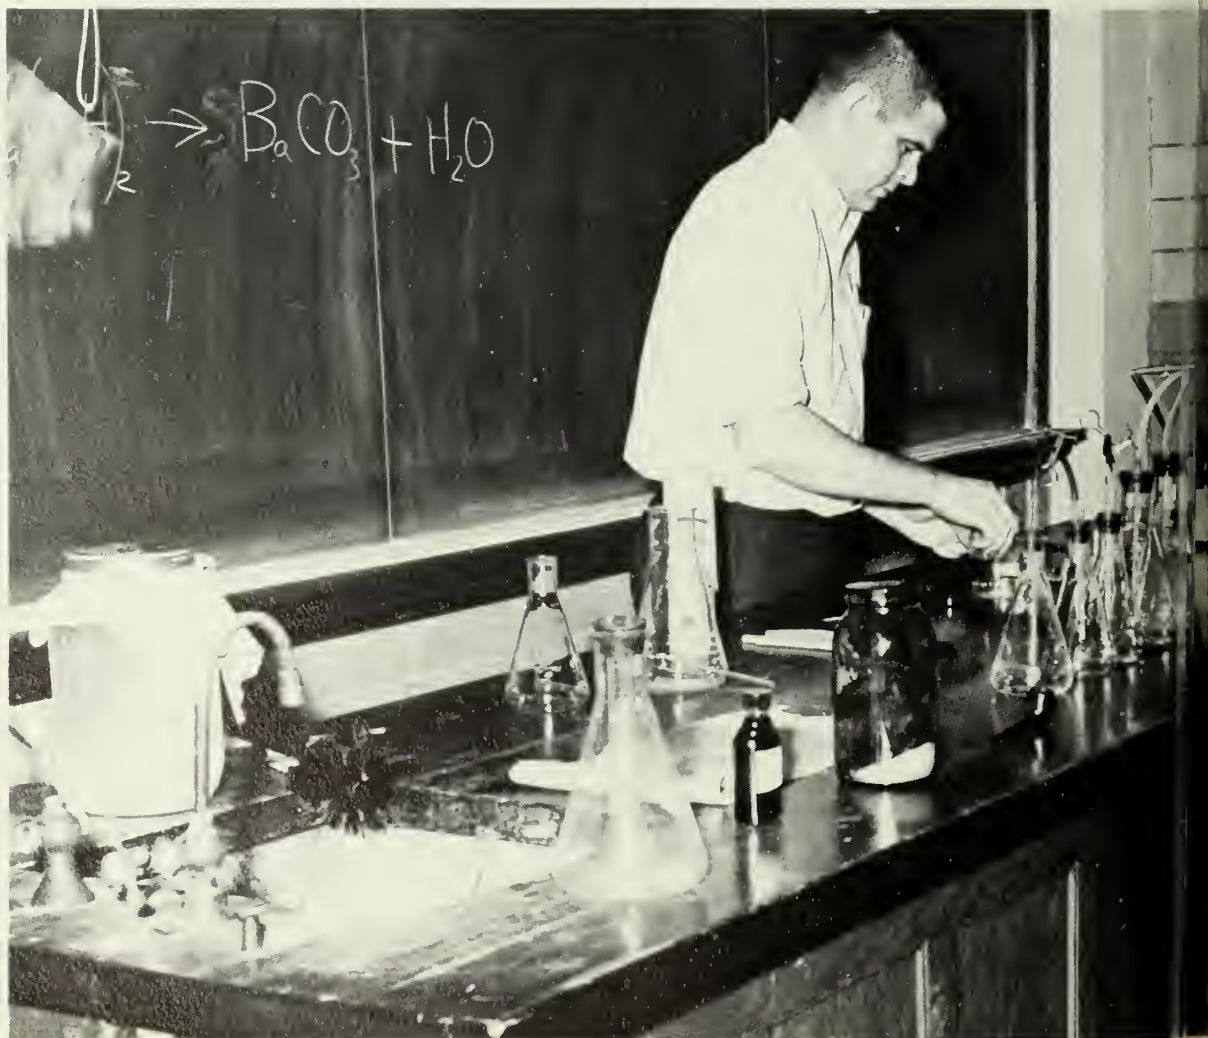

Dane Hatley (below, left) was ranked second among all the cadets at Summer Camp.

Graduate School

Graduate students put in a lot of lab time.

Dr. W. W. Nedrow is dean of the Graduate School.

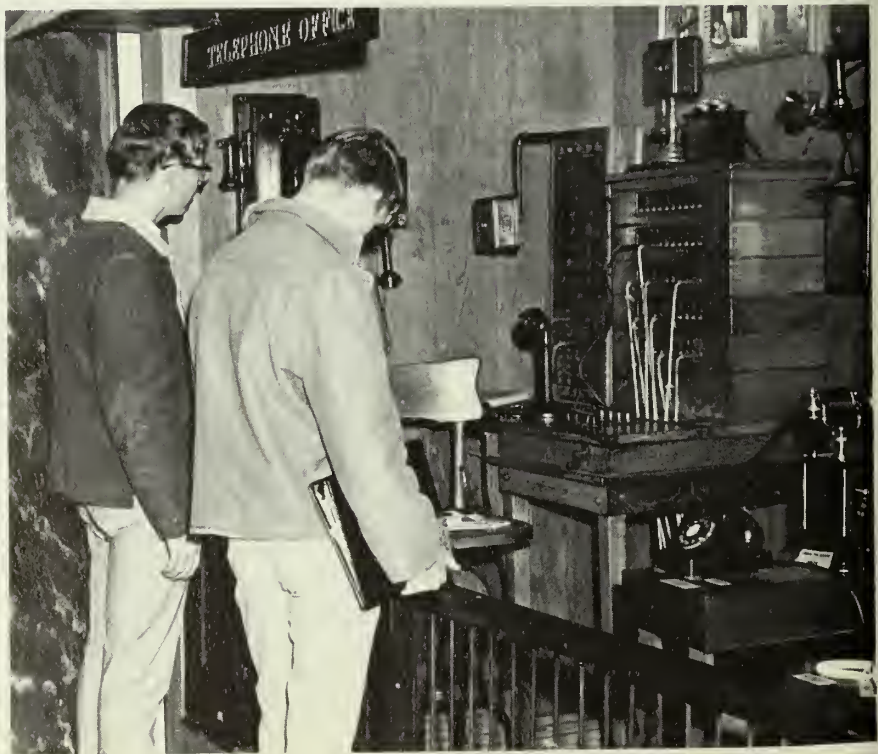

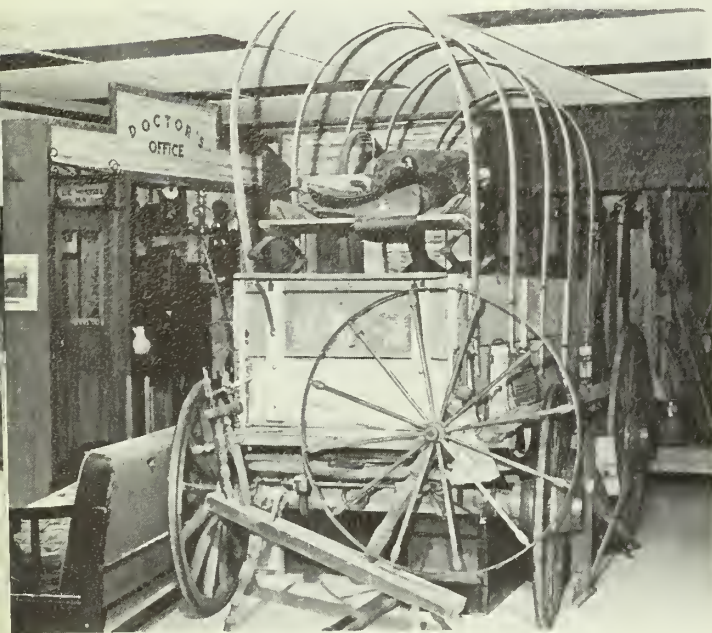

Months of seminars, research and dissertations led to 203 masters degrees in 19 areas for Graduate School students at this year's commencements. The expanding Graduate School, headed by Dr. W. W. Nedrow, continually improves the program for graduate students by the addition of new courses (80 by 1968-69), hiring of new faculty (27 for next year), and increases in graduate assistantships (48 this year as compared to five in 1961).

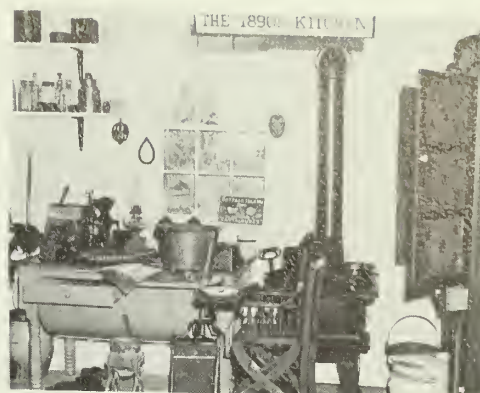

Enrollment reached the highest point during summer school, 593 and 444 the past two summer sessions. The regular sessions in 1967-68 had 270 and 299 enrolled.

Museum Adds New Displays

Museum staff—(front) Glenda Forester, Fred Shepherd, Lanay Watson, (back) Randy May, Hubert Crain, and Rodney Anderson.

The past year brought many additions, including donations ranging from rock collections to cut glass, to the ASU museum located on the lower floor of the Dean B. Ellis Library.

The museum, directed by Dr. Eugene B. Wittlake—with assistance from Mrs. Wittlake and eight student preparators—is both an institutional and community service. Well equipped in its five major areas of concentration—natural science, pioneer history, Arkansas Indian culture, and historical glassware and china—the museum is used for research and reference in several courses.

Indian Village:

Moving in and cleaning up a trailer can be quite a task, especially when former residents leave a melted chocolate pie in the refrigerator.

Indian Staff

Jean Hamilton was head typist for the annual.

Classes staff—
Sharon Gwathney,
Jane Jackson,
Kay Mead, Nancy
Cooper, Pam Geraghty, and Nancy Kemp.

Sports staff—(below) Jim Lassiter, Bill Green,
H. T. Moore,
(above) Dan
Henderson, Eddie Reddick, and Jack Montgomery.

*A yearbook staff is an ambivalent lot at best;
they both love and hate the object of their labor.
An on-and-off-again bunch of dedicated deadbeats.*

The battle done

Copy staff members (top right) Marcia Thompson, Betty Stanley, Bethel Thurman, and Jim Moshinskie worked in close conjunction with layout staff (above), consisting of Marge Mueller, Ron Becker, Joe Birts, Jim Lassiter, and Dave McDaniel.

*So now I am prepared.
They have handed me
a gilt-edged sheet of paper and said:
"Go forth into the world.
Assert."*

*So here I stand, formally deprived of my ignorance,
looking at you, world.
And all I can see is that you're still out there,
world.*

*Behind this facade
of education,
am I really ready?
All I have been through—that incessant frenzy
of seeking,
finding or failing—
should have prepared me.*

*But the same forebodings
and beckoning voices are still with me.*

*Yet
there is a difference,
a strange certainty,
I can feel,
but not explain.
For while you may be
out there, world,
I know
you're in here, too.*

the catharsis...

It all began four years ago when I became a student at Arkansas State. The same year, I joined the Indian staff. This school, this yearbook and I have been developing together ever since. What has happened to us—and you—is what the preceding 359 rambling pages are all about.

While the 1968 Indian is, in a traditional sense, a retrospective record of a single year at ASU, on another level it is also a depiction of an entire college career. We have attempted to mirror those distinctions unique to each class—from the uneasy zeal of freshmen to the contrived nonchalance of seniors. But more importantly, we have also tried to show the unifying influence of change and mutual experience. That the Indian staff was composed of representatives from all the classes added authenticity to the effort.

And a fine staff it was. Each editor and worker shown on the staff pages earned the right to have his picture there by laboring consistently throughout the year. They comprised one of the largest conglomerations of talent and energy that has ever been brought to bear in the production of an A-State yearbook. My assistant editor, Dianne Gage (who took a brief leave of absence just before the final deadline to become Mrs. Steve Clark) was both a good friend and a competent worker. Layout editor Ron Becker and I spent considerable time giving the Indian's pages a different look by using a new layout and design format. Because of the efforts of Betty Stanley—the most rampant of all my editors—I believe we have succeeded in adding special vitality to the copy in this annual. (Both Betty and I owe belated thanks to copy writers Donna Simpson and Beth Daniels, who were unable to be here when the staff pictures were taken.)

Associate editor Harry Truman Moore, who handled the sports section, was particularly well-suited for his job. He really came through for me on the fourth deadline, which was a harrowing experience for the whole staff. Classes editor Nancy Kemp—an old friend since our high school days in Hot Springs and a veteran Indian staffer—put her section of the book together in record time after receiving an able assist from Kay Parks.

Our photographers—Marion Meredith, Keith Ashcraft, Dale Butler and Gordon Morris—were the most disorganized and idiosyncratic members of the staff. Perhaps that's why they produced some of the best yearbook photography, this editor has ever seen.

Although he probably won't believe I'm saying it, I owe an extra amount of gratitude to Tom Manning, our advisor. True, Tom and I had our differences—some of which kept the journalism building in an uproar for days. But he was the main one responsible for keeping the staff's enthusiasm and determination at a high peak. He was strict enough to keep us out of trouble (hopefully) and liberal enough to allow experimentation with a number of new ideas.

Thanks also to the faculty members with whom I was associated this year (some who were inspiring, others who were at least indulgent of my class cuts), and to ASU's administrators (especially L. Cameron, who helped rescue the book from a financial precipice).

Even at the risk of sounding endearing, I must pay tribute to my wife, Shari. Her patience and unselfishness lightened the load of one responsibility so I was better able to shoulder the demands of another.

Looking back on this, our collective brainchild, I feel certain some will accuse us of producing a rather sporadic view of this campus; they could pay us no higher compliment. For if this book gives a desultory impression, perhaps we have come close to symbolizing the potpourri of experiences that makes college such a fraught and memorable time of life. Herein are static images that can only hint at the true nature of this place. The reality of Arkansas State University cannot be defined with words and pictures; it exists indescribably within each individual student. It's up to you to find it.
